Hughes Book 'Disaster'

Irving says wife signed checks

By WALLACE TURNER

NEW YORK — During the time they believed that Clifford Irving was in frequent contact with his subject, the prospective publishers of "The Autobiography of Howard Hughes" did not check up on the author's claims of access to the eccentric billionaire.

Now they have no unarguable proof to corroborate his story. They have no pictures, no tape recordings, no testimony from disinterested witnesses that Irving was indeed dealing with Hughes. Irving is under suspicion, perhaps wrongly, and the book project teeters on the brink of disaster.

Irving's public admission to the New York County district attorney's office Friday that it was his wife who had opened a Swiss bank account in the name of "Helga Hughes," has sent shock and dismay through those companies. And while Irving still insists that this was done at the direction of Hughes, the publishers' failure to get independent corroboration leaves them at this point virtually helpless to validate the manuscript.

The publishers, and the small army of police inves-publishers that any attempt to get independent corroboration of his story might be discovered by Hughes and "that would be the ball game."

What has happened since then has raised the questions whether the publishers could have been duped or Irving could have been fooled by impostors.

A detailed study of affidavits, interviews, public statements of the principals, and information obtained in Zurich, Switzerland, shows that two totally unexpected developments have thrown the book project open to suspicion.

First, Howard R. Hughes, the billionaire industrialist who has been in deep seclusion for 15 years, apparently came part way out of hiding to deny that he had helped create the "autobiography."

Second, Swiss bank accounts have proved to be not so secret as had been tigators searching the debris of the book publishing plan, also are woefully short of leads to any persons who may have worked with Irving, or who may have victimized him with an impersonation of Hughes, as the writer has suggested.

Once the Irving manuscript was known by the code name "Project Octavio," which was devised to protect the secret that was known only to a small group of executives at McGraw-Hill, the book publisher, and at Time Inc. Irving repeatedly told the CARSON, CITY (UPI) — The Nevada Supreme Court Friday cleared the way for the personal interview of Howard Hughes in a $50 million lawsuit filed against him by former aide Robert Maheu.

The court dissolved a district court order which barred Maheu's lawyers from taking pretrial depositions from the recluse. Maheu sued Hughes after he was fired in 1970. Maheu charged his character was damaged when he was ousted as head of Hughes' Nevada operations. Maheu's salary was $500,000 a year.

assumed. Under some condition they can be opened, and those conditions existed in this case, when fraud was suspected. When the "H. R. Hughes" at the Swiss Credit Bank in Zurich account was opened to trace where $700,000 of McGraw-Hill's money had gone, it was found that the account belonged not to Howard R. Hughes, but to a woman whose passport, reportedly forged, identified her as "Helga R. Hughes."

Friday, Irving admitted that "Helga was in fact his wife, the former Edith Sommer. Both the Irvings had denied for a week that this was so, and the publishers had not been able to prove or disprove it.

Even when their book project was announced Dec. 7, there were only three general areas of evidence in the publishers' hands that Irving was being truthful when he said he had interviewed Mr. Hughes.

First, there was the story told by Irving, and supported in part by his research associate, Richard Suskind, who shares in the royalty expectations of the author. Irving has travel records and hotel bills to support his story of meeting Hughes in Mexico, San

Gay, spontaneous artist, bewildered by dispute

Edith Irving seemed unlikely 'Helga'

By MARTIN ARNOLD
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — It was for those who have been with her since the start of the Hughes book mystery, impossible to believe Edith Sommer Irving was leading a double life.

They saw her, they said, as a rather bewildered woman, who had somehow become involved in an intrigue she scarcely understood. Surely, she was not, her friends thought, such an accomplished actress that she could hide the fact from them that she was playing the role of "Helga Hughes," the woman who banked the checks intended for Howard R. Hughes in a numbered Swiss bank account.

Mrs. Irving herself would tell them that when the full story was known, she "hoped it turned out that the bank deposits were made on days when I was out of Ibiza because I have people who can account for every move I made on those days."

Mrs. Irving is spontaneous, gay, an artist-housewife, who roams Ibiza in slacks and brightly colored blouses, her long, dark-blond hair, streaked light blond, falling around her shoulders.

But, according to Swiss police, she is also a silent woman, with long dark hair, who wears dark-colored midi dresses and dark leather boots, who on her visits to Zurich stayed in a hotel by the railroad station.

At one point, when it seemed to her that all the police and reporters in the world were after her husband, Clifford Irving, she said she "had never heard of Howard Hughes" until Cliff came home waving this letter from Hughes.

"He had to explain to me who he was," she added.

"My life is slightly separate from his business life, and what I call my business life, my painting," she said then. "We didn't talk very much about it."

Mrs. Irving is about 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighs about 115 pounds. Her face and figure are slender, and her fingers are particularly slim. She often wears gaily colored rings. She is 36, the daughter of a Swiss businessman, who, when he died, according to friendly sources, left her a yearly income of $10,000 and securities valued at more than $100,000.

At home, in Ibiza, in the airy rooms, with their red tile floors and whitewashed rooms, she looks to be in her late twenties. But outside, in the sunlight, one can see the lines around her brown eyes.

Throughout the Hughes-irving dispute, Mrs. Irving has appeared remarkably cool and, indeed, often seemed to have to check herself from making too much of a joke out of the situation. "If I'd taken those $650,000, do you think I'd still be here with this man?" she would ask, pointing to her husband.

Or she would tell a visitor that "Cliff thought the house was bugged, but I said with the electricity the way it is here, anybody who tried to put a bug in would be electrocuted."

When speculation began that she might be the mysterious "Helga Hughes," Mrs. Irving said at first that she treated such talk as a joke, but later she indicated alarm because, she said, she thought the Hughes people were plotting against her.

It was all done so coolly, with such bewildered innocence, that most journalists following her believed her.

There were times, however, when she appeared tougher. Late one night, for instance, when her husband's eyes were nearly glued closed from fatigue, she started complaining he was foolish to give the original transcript of the so-called Hughes manuscript to his publisher, McGraw-Hill. "He doesn't even get a receipt," she said.

At another time, when her husband was in New York and she was in Spain, she refused to join him here, saying nothing would be accomplished by the family's hanging around a New York hotel in winter and that, anyhow, he'd better come home because Ned, 4, their oldest son, had started to wet his bed again.

On other occasions she would complain gently that her husband was too much of a "stiff." She said she had divorced her first husband, a German businessman, with whom she had

Canada dockers tighten noose on Western tieup

Canadian longshoremen tightened the noose on U.S. West Coast Shipping by refusing today to unload cargo which has been diverted to British Columbia ports during the strike by American dock workers.

Coupled with teamster picketing of Mexican ports Friday, the action stopped end runs by shippers who have been bringing goods into the two countries by sea and trucking them across the borders into the United States.

Strike may be Bridges' last hurrah! Page C-6.

Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU), ordered members not to handle cargo diverted to British Columbia ports beginning at 8 a.m. today.

On Friday Teamsters, in their first joint picketing effort with the ILWU since 1967, parked more than 50 heavy trucks along the highway on both sides of the Mexican-U.S. border station.

Round-the-clock cargo handling at Ensenada was brought to a halt with four ships in port and 21 vessels in the harbor awaiting berth assignments.

Mexican drivers have been trucking inbound cargo 70 miles to the border where the vans are transferred to trucks driven by Americans then checked at the new customs house in San Ysidro. About 120 longshoremen and teamsters established a picket line at San Ysidro.

A similar procedure has been used in the Canadian port of Vancouver where ships were diverted from California, Washington and Oregon. There are 48 ships

FCC reversal; to probe phone hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission (FCC), under sharp congressional criticism for the past month reversed itself Friday and announced it will reinstitute an investigation of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. investment and operating expenses.

The FCC voted unanimously to set aside the order it issued Dec. 23 dropping the investigation on grounds it had insufficient resources to carry it out.

Reversal of the decision came just after a House antitrust subcommittee expressed alarm that the inquiry had been abandoned, and said a similar decision by the FCC in 1953 may have cost telephone users $159 million in long distance overcharges.

Another critic, Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., said last week he planned to take the FCC to court as a private citizen if it failed to continue the AT&T investigation.

After Friday's reversal, Harris said the FCC now was on "the right track" but that Congress would have to appropriate funds for a broad investigation and would have to keep an eye on the FCC to make sure it was carried out in depth.

In the Dec. 23 vote, Commissioners Nicholas Johnson and H. Rex Lee dissented, calling the decision "drastic" and "bordering on the irresponsible."

Johnson called Friday's reversal "little more than a gesture."

"By any comparison the FCC's resources are laughably inadequate to deal with its responsibilities for regulating Bell — whether the comparison is to other regulatory agencies, or to the resources that Bell can command in regulatory proceedings before the commission, or to the resources of other government agencies that deal with communications policy."

AT&T Chairman H. I. Romnes said in a statement later that "we didn't seek its (the investigation) dismissal in the first place and we are not in the least dismayed now that it is back on the track.

"We have been ready all along to respond to the commission's interest in whatever aspect of our operations the regulators might want to look into," Romnes said. "We are ready now."

In its reversal order Friday, the commission expressed concern that its original order had "provoked widespread public concern as to efficacy of our regulatory processes, and equally widespread misunderstanding as to the meaning of the Dec. 23 order."

The FCC, noting that President Nixon's new budget called for increased funds, said money would be spent immediately to let contracts and retain public utility experts and consultants to assist in the investigation.

AT&T has asked for a $550 million annual increase in long distance rates. Half of that amount was temporarily granted in January, 1971.

'Great debate' urged on auto exhaust cleanup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus testified Friday he wants the public to be fully informed by a "great national debate" before his Environmental Protection Agency decides whether to grant automakers a year's delay in meeting tough new exhaust cleanup standards.

He told the House commerce subcommittee that the EPA refused to be rushed into a decision by Detroit's claims that the industry must begin tooling up for the 1975 models by midyear. "It's an assumption, like the other assumptions that must be proven," Ruckelshaus said.

The 1970 Clean Air Act called for a 90 per cent reduction in hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions by the 1975 models compared with 1970 cars. A provision in the law would grant the automakers another year to meet the standards if they proved they had tried but had been unable to meet the standards because of technical difficulties. Ruckelshaus was called to testify after both General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. told the EPA they would seek the year's delay. Other manufacturers also were expected to seek a delay.

Ruckelshaus said he would grant no delay if even one manufacturer could meet the standards. He added that he also had authority to change the so-called "durability" provision of the law which calls for pollution control devices to last for at least 50,000 miles.

"The matter of granting or denying a suspension in this very complex area is one that, in our opinion, should be the subject of great national debate," he said.

He said he also was considering changing guidelines for industry submission of supporting technical data because present confidentiality restrictions on trade secrets will keep much of the information from the public.

Applicants will be required "to make public their supporting evidence at the time of application so that the public can be well prepared at any suspension hearing," Ruckelshaus said. "We intend to lay before the Congress and the public all the information available to us on this matter."

Subcommittee Chairman Paul G. Rogers, D-Fla., praised Ruckelshaus for his aim of full public disclosure of the industry's claims and noted that Ruckelshaus could head off a delay by setting interim standards for durability.

Singer drops 'bomb' at White House dinner

Combined News Services

'Hi ya, Charlie'

A young woman in a singing group caused an embarrassed moment at a formal White House dinner Friday night when she waved a placard and called to President Nixon to stop the bombing in Vietnam. The incident occurred as the dinner guests, assembled to pay honor to Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Wallace, founders of the Readers Digest, went into the East Room and sat down for some entertainment.

As the Ray Coniff Singers prepared for their first number, the young woman, later identified as Miss Carol Feraci of Los Angeles, waved a placard reading "Stop The Killing." At the same time she called out to Nixon, seated with his wife in the first row: "You go to church on Sunday and pray to Jesus Christ," she said. "If Jesus Christ were in this room tonight you would not dare to drop another bomb."

"Bless the Berrigans and Daniel Ellsberg," she said, referring to antiwar priests Philip and Daniel Berrigan and the man accused of leaking the Pentagon Papers. Her remarks elicited a chorus of groans from the assembly. Miss Feraci said later that Nixon smiled after her comment. After the group sang its first number, band leader Ray Coniff told the discomfited audience, "The beginning of this program was as much a surprise to me as everybody." Coniff told Miss Feraci it would be better if she left, and she did. Reporters covering the entertainment caught up with her on the steps down to the ground floor. Miss Feraci, an attractive brunette, who gave her age as 30, said she was against the killing. "We shouldn't be in Vietnam," she said.

Miss Feraci said she is a professional singer but only took the job with Coniff a week ago especially so she could come to the White House. "If I could make my voice heard I could do some good," she said of her motivation. The incident was reminiscent of an incident in 1968 when singer Barbra Streisand chose the occasion of a White House luncheon with Mrs. Johnson to denounce President Johnson's war policies. Mrs. Johnson stoutly defended her husband. During Friday's affair, the Wallaces were presented the Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian award.

NIXON HAS EYE ON WOMAN ECONOMIST

President Nixon is expected to name a woman, Marina Whitman, to the influential Council of Economic Advisers. Sources inside the White House said the appointment will be announced soon. Mrs. Whitman, 36, professor of economics at the University of Pittsburgh, is a member of the Price Commission which supervises price controls. The council, which advises the President on matters involving the nation's economy, currently has a vacancy caused by the resignation of former Chairman Paul McCracken. The chairmanship was taken over by economist Hubert O. Stein and Stein's place on the council has not yet been SAIGON, Saturday — Ten American soldiers were wounded and a U.S. helicopter was forced down by Communist ground fire in heavy fighting near Saigon Friday, military sources said today. The 200,000-man South Vietnamese defense force ringing the capital was put on alert Friday because of an increase in the tempo of Communist attacks in the Saigon area, South Vietnamese sources said. Four GIs from a company of the 1st Cavalry were wounded in a fight near Xuan Loc, 33 miles east-northeast of Saigon. Four more Americans were wounded several hours later in another skirmish in the same area, the sources said. A helicopter ferrying new supplies in the area was hit by Communist ground fire and had to make a precautionary landing at a nearby base, the U.S. Command said. There were no injuries reported.

Horsemeat for Argentines

CORDOBA—A local meat packing plant requested permission Friday to sell horsemeat for human consumption in Argentina, a country where quality beefsteak once was the staple. Announcement of the proposal was a shock to Argentines, who long have prided themselves on the quality, size and abundance of their beefsteaks. Chronic economic problems, however, have forced the government in recent years to enact legislation reducing domestic consumption of beef and, at the same time, have forced the price of beef to new highs.

U.S. still in Winter's grip

CHICAGO — A midwinter storm took a swipe at the Northeast Friday but lost its punch before it could drop deep snows. Harsh cold tightened its grip on a broad belt of the midlands from the Rockies to the Great Lakes. Meter maids went back to work writing tickets in Seattle, signaling to motorists that the worst was over in the snow-weary Pacific Northwest. Schools closed in Baltimore and parts of New England as light snows spread across the North Atlantic Seaboard.

Canada air traffic near normal

'Cold-blooded assassination'

NEW YORK — Police Commissioner Patrick Murphy, his voice choked with emotion, said Friday that "strong leads" were being pursued in what he termed the "cold-blooded assassination" of two rookie cops in an ambush Thursday night. Patrolmen Gregory Foster, 22, and Rocco Laurie, 23, were killed by three gunmen in a spray of bullets on Manhattan's racially diverse Lower East Side. The patrolmen were cut down after leaving a luncheonette where they had inquired about an illegally parked car. "We have some strong leads and some witnesses," Murphy told newsmen.

Postwar aid offered Indochina

WASHINGTON — The United States secretly offered Communist negotiators a five-year plan of postwar reconstruction in Indochina totaling $7.5 billion, with fully one-third of the aid going to North Vietnam, the White House revealed Friday. The offer was made by Henry Kissinger during secret meetings with the North Vietnamese in Paris last year to counter unacceptable Communist demands that the U.S. pay war reparations. Officials said Friday that the tentative amounts were $5 billion for South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos and $2.5 billion for North Vietnam over five years.

County plans trailer tax

By NOEL SWANN
From Our L.A. Bureau

County Assessor Philip Watson has lowered the boom on mobile home owners saying Friday he has decided to tax the trailers on the same basis as ordinary homes.

Admitting he was "flying in the teeth" of legislation which now excludes trailer homes from the property tax rolls, Watson said "I will do it anyway and face any suits that may result."

Watson said there are an estimated 30,000 to 40,000 mobile homes and offices in the county which, if taxed on the same basis as fixed residences, would bring in "at least $3 million extra revenue."

The assessor said Mobile home owners presently pay an "in lieu" tax of two per cent on the value of the trailer to the Department of Motor Vehicles.

If treated as a regular home, the current property tax rate of about $13.30 per $100 of assessed valuation (25 per cent of fair market value) would be applied.

Thus, the owner of a trailer with a market value of $10,000 would pay $200 to the DMV as "in lieu" tax. Under the regular property tax formula he would pay $325 without deduction of the $750 homeowner exemption, and $233 with the exemption.

Watson said he has decided to impose the new tax in the current fiscal year running from last July 1 to June 30 this year.

Since the DMV "in lieu" tax runs from January to January of each year, he said he understands many mobile home owners would already have paid the DMV levy this month.

"But if they have they'll just have to pay the property tax and apply to the DMV for a refund on their 'in lieu' levy," he said.

Asked why he was making the move, Watson said, "These things simply are not mobile homes. They stand on slabs, hooked up to electrical circuits, with awnings covering them, gardens and fences surrounding them.

"The only trip they make is from the factory to the site. In fact they can't be moved without a permit. And some of them rise to two-and-a-half stories. That's no mobile home."

He said two other states, Massachusetts and Arizona have recently won court decisions classifying the trailers as fixed residences for tax purposes.

Watson said his men are now out appraising what he termed "immobile mobiles" or "modular houses" throughout the county. He said assessors are developing a set of market value figures and a workable devaluation scales.

He said the first batch of mobile homes will be placed on the unsecured property roll in March and the second batch in June. Tax bills will be payable by the end of August.

Watson said his men are gathering the necessary information from the landowners at the mobile home parks.

"If they don't cooperate, we tell them we'll simply assess all the trailers on the lot to the landowners," he said. "This usually brings a quick response."

Watson said the plan is to assess the trailers as part of the land on which they stand. Trailer owners then apply to have their structures "lifted" from the land assessment and they may then also apply for the $750 homeowner exemption.

Food bill cuts gain in index

By JAMES LEAVY

Higher prices for food offset by lower prices for clothing, transportation and recreation, resulted in no change in the average cost of goods and services in the Long Beach-Los Angeles area during December, according to the U.S. Department of Labor.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reports a 7 per cent hike in food costs. Fresh fruits and vegetables drove food prices up with lettuce, celery, tomatoes, cabbage and oranges registering the largest increases in price.

In other areas during December:

—Housing costs were unchanged but a 2 per cent drop in shelter costs occurred when interest rates declined for the second consecutive month.

—Fuel and utility prices were up 1.6 per cent chiefly as a result of an increase of use of electricity and telephone services.

—Apparel and upkeep items dropped 3 per cent. Clothing for women and girls dropped 7 per cent while men's clothing rose by 1 per cent.

—Transportation costs were lower in December by half a percentage point and private transportation costs dipped 7 per cent due to lower prices for used cars. Public transportation was up 1.6 per cent because of higher railroad fares.

—Health and recreation costs dropped a tenth of a per cent. There was no change in medical costs but reading and recreational items were cut 4 per cent, offset by a 3 per cent boost in other recreational goods and services.

The consumer price index in the Long Beach-Los Angeles area during December was 120.1, considerably below the national average of 123.1.

THE INDEX of retail food prices throughout the nation was 120.3 during December. The Department of Labor listed it at 118.6 in this area.

Indexes generally reflected prices in other West Coast areas which were higher than those paid by Southland consumers.

Consumer target in debate over environment pollution

By GIL BAILEY
Contributing Editor

Conservationists debated industrial leaders for six hours Friday before a special Junior League environmental conference at California State College, Long Beach.

But Dr. John Goldsmith of the State Department of Public Health said the fight to save the environment has moved into a new phase which involves more than regulating industry.

"IT IS the consumer habit and behavior which is the target now," he said to the audience of 200.

Ellen Stern Harris, keynote speaker at the lunch, put another emphasis on the environmental battle, as she centered on campaign financing.

She noted 90 per cent of the campaign funds come from a few contributors, putting the politician in the position of either voting with the polluter or facing a campaign financial drought.

The Junior League conference came on the third anniversary of the Union Oil Co. blowout in the Santa Barbara Channel, a point noted by Thomas Gaines of Union Oil.

"THE BLOWOUT," he said somewhat sadly, "was one of the best things to happen to the environmental movement. It was a cohesive rallying point for the environmentalists."

Gaines, a former industrial representative on the Los Angeles Regional Water Quality Control Board, also pointed out that 14,000 off-shore oil wells have had only "six major mishaps."

"There were three spills and three fires," he said, as he outlined oil industry efforts to stop pollution.

Gaines also noted two oil industry problems have not been solved — used crankcase oil pouring into the nation's sewers and underground oil facility leak which are difficult to trace.

THE MORNING panel discussion centered on air pollution with strong emphasis on power needs.

Goldsmith commented, "If the only choice we are given is between a fossil fuel plant on the coast upwind of a major metropolitan area and a nuclear plant, then I would choose the nuclear plant, but I don't accept that the plants have to be located there and I would pay a larger electrical rate to have my choice."

The doctor, an expert in the field of air pollution, also commented that Los Angeles County's alert system is "a relic of an earlier era."

HE ADDED, "I think a society which will not restrict its activities and its use of energy, but will restrict the activities of its children as a consequence of the power and energy use, isn't very realistic."

His comments drew applause.

During the afternoon a second panel discussed water pollution.

Ronald Robie, a member of the State Water Resources Control Board, replacing board chairman Kerry Mulligan, who offered his resignation Wednesday at the request of Gov. Reagan because of an alleged conflict of interest and a Honolulu bribe charge, outlined the activities of the board.

BOARD conduct and activities drew support from conservationist and scientific members of the panel.

Robie outlined efforts to clean up Lake Tahoe, and cited cleaner water in harbors and bays as proof of the board's activities.

Penny stock

March 8 I sent a check for $100 to Phillips, McFarland, Gould and Korones, 311 S. Missouri Ave., Clearwater, Fla., for 400 shares of Dorothy Perkins Cosmetics Inc. They acknowledged receipt of my check.

In July I wrote asking when stock certificates would be issued and was told no one knew and they would await my further advice. I wrote again Dec. 18 and Jan. 10, advising Phillips, McFarland, Gould and Korones to refund my $100. I've not heard from them since. Can ACTION LINE help me get my money? F. M. B., Long Beach.

No, but you should be getting your stock certificates within the next few weeks. ACTION LINE contacted Donald McFarland of the agency in Clearwater, who said he never received any correspondence from you requesting a refund. McFarland explained that the Dorothy Perkins Cosmetics stock was sold as a result of reorganization of the company following bankruptcy. Because the bankruptcy and reorganization proceedings were tied up for some time in New York courts, the certificates were not issued. A few weeks ago the reorganization was completed and McFarland forwarded all the money from purchasers of the stock to an attorney in Miami who is handling the issuance of certificates. "We did refund money to persons who requested it," McFarland said. "But that would be impossible now, since I no longer have the funds." If you have any further questions, you should write directly to McFarland at the Clearwater address.

Certificate search

A friend of my brother called me from Florida and said my brother had died in early December somewhere in New York State, possibly Albany. My brother traveled from place to place working as a farm laborer and I hadn't heard from him in a long time. Can you find out how he died and who arranged for the burial of his body? M. L. S., Long Beach.

We could find no record at this time of your brother's death. But all deaths in New York State, except those in New York City, are eventually recorded at the Office of Vital Records, State Department of Health, Albany, N.Y. 12208. There is a three-month processing delay, so death records from December should be on file after March. Write them then for a copy of the death certificate. Give them as much information about your brother as you can and enclose a $2 check or money order. In addition to that state office, ACTION LINE called the Bureau of Vital Statistics for the City of Albany, the Albany County Health Department and the New York City, Manhattan Borough, Bureau of Records and Statistics, all places where area death records are filed, but none had a death certificate for your brother.

Bridge building

Is there anywhere I can take bridge lessons? B. H., Paramount.

The Long Beach Recreation Department sponsors a 10-week bridge course, taught by a certified Goren instructor. A group of classes has just begun, but you might want to register for the next session, which is scheduled to begin the week of April 3. Sessions for beginners will be held Monday evenings from 7:30 to 10:30 at the El Dorado Park Recreation Center, 2800 Studebaker Road, and intermediate classes will be held Thursdays from 10:30 a.m. until 2 p.m. at the Bruin Den, 4900 E. Seventh St. There is a $10 fee for the courses. The House of Bridge, 226 E. Spruce Ave., Inglewood, holds continuous 12-week bridge classes, for beginners and intermediates. The charge is $1.50 a lesson. You can call 677-7967 for more information.

Stick to old grind

Brazilian pepper trees are very common in Long Beach. How should the peppers from these trees be processed to provide edible table pepper? G. R. A., Long Beach.

The Brazilian pepper tree (schinus molle) is grown for its beauty and not for use as spices. This tree, also called the California pepper tree, is a member of the cashew family and is related to poison oak, said Dr. Charles A. Schroeder, UCLA botanist. The tree's bitter fruit could possibly be toxic for some people, he said. The tree's oils could cause skin irritation. He suggested you buy regular pepper pods and grind them yourself for really good fresh pepper. The black pepper we use (Piper nigrum) comes from a climbing woody vine and bears berrylike peppercorns which are dried and ground. It is native to northwest India and widely cultivated there and in other tropical regions. The Encyclopedia Britannica says pepper is probably the world's most widely used spice.

Russo immunity rejected; trial set

Associated Press

A federal judge in Los Angeles has ruled that Anthony Russo, a former Rand Corp. researcher, must stand trial with Daniel Ellsberg despite his once being granted immunity in return for grand jury testimony about the Pentagon Papers case.

Russo never testified, as a result of numerous legal tangles. U.S. District Court Judge Matthew Byrne Jr. said on Friday that the law "provides that the immunity attaches at the time that the testimony is given and that the scope of the immunity is determined by the testimony."

After conferring with attorneys, Byrne postponed the trial until May 9 because of the involvement of Ellsberg's attorney in the Harrisburg, Pa., trial of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and seven others. Byrne set pretrial hearings for Feb. 29 and May 1. He said he would confer with attorneys in the interim to calculate the progress in the Harrisburg trial and determine if any further postponements would be needed.

RUSSO, 35, is charged with receiving stolen government documents — the papers relating to the origins of the Vietnam war — and of conspiring with Ellsberg to copy and distribute them to the news media.

Russo's attorney, Michael Balaban, argued that Russo was immune from prosecution and that it was the government's fault that he didn't testify.

Russo, called before the grand jury at the inception of the case, refused to testify, claiming the Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination. A judge ordered him to testify under a grant of immunity, but he still refused, was ruled in contempt and jailed.

AFTER 45 days in jail, Russo announced he would testify if given a transcript of his testimony to make public. A federal judge issued an order that if Russo testified, the government should give him a transcript. The Justice Department, after saying it believed the ruling was illegal, declined to have Russo testify.

"Mr. Russo would not be here today under indictment were it not that the government prosecutor refused to follow the order..." Balaban said.

Vice officer kills suspect in robbery

A Los Angeles police vice squad officer, taken to an alley by a woman who propositioned him, shot and killed her husband after the suspect tried to attack him.

Police said Myron Glick, 26, and his wife, Ellen, 23, had been robbing victims who were lured to alleys by promises of sex.

Officer M. B. Barnett, a plainclothesman with the Venice vice squad, said he was propositioned by Mrs. Glick Thursday night and taken to the alley.

He said her husband stepped out of the shadows, armed with a tire iron and a knife, and demanded money. Barnett identified himself and told Glick to drop his weapons.

Police said Glick refused and lunged at the policeman. Barnett killed him with one shot when the man was about two feet away.

Jaywalking leads to bank holdup charge

It wasn't a bank holdup that got William Ralph Snow, 29, into trouble Friday.

It was jaywalking. Snow, 29, into trouble Friday for robbery of Crocker Citizens Bank, 2885 Pacific Coast Hwy., Torrance, was nailed by two Lennox sheriff's deputies for jaywalking across Crenshaw Boulevard.

It was while they were preparing to cite him for jaywalking that Torrance police arrived in response to the bank holdup, a robbery by a man pretending to have a pistol.

Officers found a screwdriver in Snow's pocket and about $700 in cash. He was arrested by Torrance police and turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Military drug amnesty plan termed failing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate investigators charged Friday that the average serviceman fears the Armed Services' amnesty program for drug users.

The men were portrayed as feeling the system is laced with punitive booby traps and that the military will make them squeal on their buddies.

However, the investigators concluded that the amnesty program "may well be the key" to the success of the entire anti-drug campaign if it can be made credible to the men and acceptable to the commanders.

"AT THE present time, the program does not appear to be working with any marked success, as is witnessed by the small percentage of men participating in it," they said.

The findings were included in a 47-page report based on two months of field work in Southeast Asia, the Pacific and in the United States by the Senate subcommittee on drug abuse in the military. The chairman is Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa.

Started in 1971, the Defense Department's program granted drug users who turned themselves in full amnesty from prosecution and punitive action. Instead of being handled as a disciplinary problem, the drug user is considered a medical patient.

Based on interviews, the investigators reported that servicemen consider the program "more a plus than a minus ... but trusting it to the point of participating in it — no thanks."

"Most of the men — both users and nonusers — feel that the program is not so nonpunitive as the name implies."

THE REPORT also said that "the suspicion of the men would appear to have some grounds."

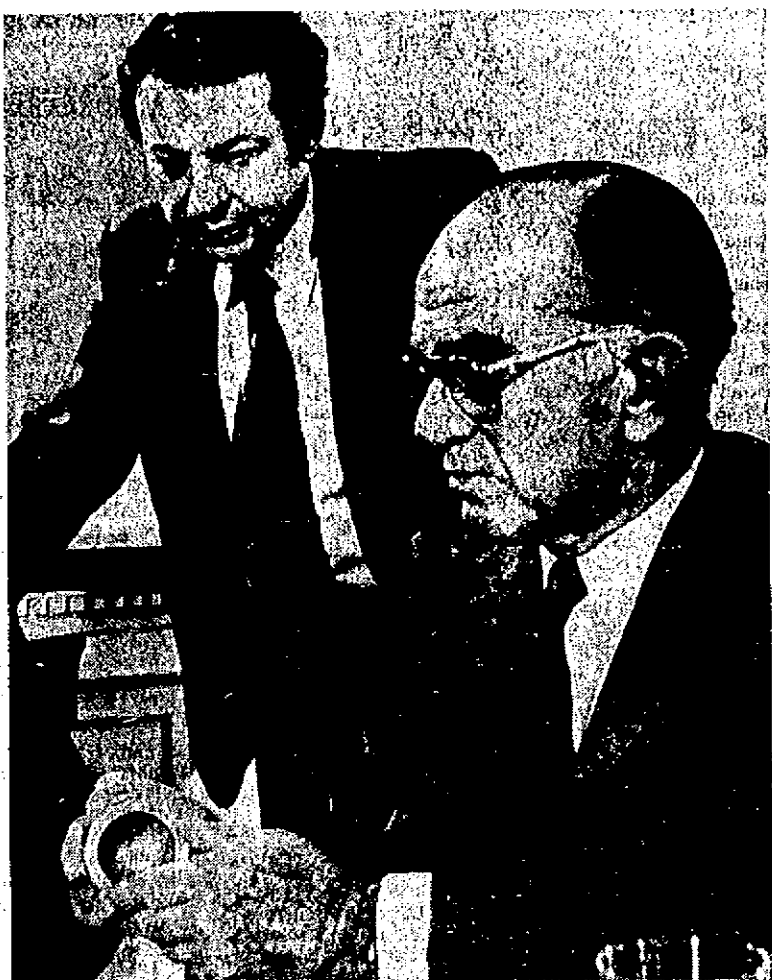

"In any event, it is clear that there is a feeling on the part of the average serviceman that the amnesty or exemption program is laced with punitive booby traps and would also be used to compel the participant to inform against those of his friends who are using drugs."

One of the problems cited by the report is that "theoretical amnesty from the Department of the Army does not necessarily mean practical amnesty from a company commander or the NCOs (non-commissioned officers)."

During the investigation, Senate staff aides found "a dramatic change of attitude on the part of higher echelon officers throughout the Pacific-Southeast Asia areas."

"A YEAR earlier, the majority of this group had been reluctant to admit there was any drug problem of consequence in the services at all and appeared to accept the notion that marijuana and heroin were of equal danger and potency," the report said.

"But now this group talked frankly about the pervasiveness of the drug problem and were very noticeably better informed about drugs and patterns of drug use."

Vast Indo ecological ruin told by 2 profs

By GEORGE CRILE
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., introduced legislation Friday calling for a study of the ecological damages in Southeast Asia from what he called an American "scorched earth policy" unprecedented in the history of warfare.

The bill calls for a presidential study to be presented to Congress within six months.

IN INTRODUCING the bill Nelson said that "we have senselessly blown up, bulldozed over, poisoned and permanently damaged an area so vast that it literally boggles the mind ... this is impersonal automated and mechanistic warfare brought to his logical conclusion — utter, permanent total destruction."

The Wisconsin Democrat estimated that eight billion pounds of bombs already dropped in Southeast Asia have destroyed eighty per cent of the timber forests and 10 per cent of all cultivated land in South Vietnam.

Nelson based his statements on studies conducted in Southeast Asia by Professors E. W. Pfeiffer and Arthur H. Westing on the ecological damage caused by American air warfare.

In a "counterbriefing" on U.S. policy in Indochina, sponsored by 20 members of the House of Representatives Friday, the two professors outlined the findings of their study.

BOMBING DAMAGE: According to the study, there are about 23 million bombed out craters in South Vietnam, 30 to 40 feet in diameter and 20 to 25 feet deep. In many regions of the country, the arable soil is only four to six inches deep and once churned up by the bombing becomes useless for farming.

About 300,000 unexploded bombs are estimated to be lodged just beneath the surface of the earth. The Air Force estimates that one to two per cent of these bombs will explode on contact.

Eighty per cent of all trees in the country are filled with shrapnel and cannot be used commercially. Vietnamese officials estimate 6.2 billion board feet or enough timber to satisfy the country's domestic needs for the next 30 years, have been destroyed by the bombing.

DEFOLIATION programs: Over one million acres of forest land is completely destroyed by multiple spraying. There is no chance for regeneration for 25 years.

Several million more acres of open forest were destroyed by single spraying sorties. These are now covered with elephant grass which has no known human use.

Spraying destroyed 40 to 50 per cent of the country's mangrove forests which were used to make charcoal for heating purposes. It is believed that fumes from the sprayed remains, if inhaled by pregnant women, cause birth defects.

The defoliation of 173,000 acres of rubber forests in Cambodia in 1969 resulted in the destruction of the Cambodian economy.

The two professors told of other forms of ecological devastation including the destruction of much of the jack fruit crops and a sizable portion of the country's wildlife.

Pfeiffer, who has traveled in North Vietnam, observed that the ecological damage done to South Vietnam, our ally, is far greater than that in the north. He explained that defoliation programs had been restricted to the north and that B52 bombing sorties were limited in the north because of anti-aircraft fire.

THE STUDY claims that one third of all Vietnamese have been displaced by the ecological damage. Once a rich and self-sufficient country, South Vietnam must now import rice, fuel, timber and other necessities, Pfeiffer said.

The "tragedy of it all is that no one knows or understands what is happening there, or why, or to what end," Nelson said in introducing his bill in the Senate. The ecological warfare "did not protect our soldiers or defeat the enemy and it has done far greater damage to our ally than to the enemy. These programs should be halted immediately before further permanent damage is done to the landscape."

6 major areas off of high-jobless list

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson Friday announced that six big labor areas were removed from the Labor Department's list of "substantial unemployment" this month because of economic improvement.

The areas where unemployment no longer amounts to 8 per cent or more of the labor force included Boston, Philadelphia, Rockford, Ill., and three on the West Coast — Sacramento, San Francisco-Oakland, and San Jose.

Hodgson said there was no conflict between the inclusion of three California areas and the renewed dock strike which has cost millions of dollars a day in export shipments. The stoppage had not yet begun again when the six-area list was drawn up, he said.

Chances are dim that a dock settlement can be reached through negotiations, he said. Hodgson said Congress holds the key through quick action on President Nixon's proposed legislation to handle transportation strikes.

"I accuse no one of 'foot dragging,'" he said. "But I do say Congress is not showing the sense of urgency that the President feels."

"We expect congressional action," he said. "If we get it, we'll have no concern."

REMOVAL of the six areas from the substantial unemployment list reduced the nationwide total to 54. This was 11 less than the recent high of 65 recorded in October. All six were shifted to the moderate unemployment group which covers 3 to 5.9 per cent.

Tacoma, Wash., where unemployment was calculated at 12 per cent or more, also showed improvement and was moved to the 9-11.9 per cent bracket, he noted.

In the smaller labor area category, Trinidad, Colo.; Waterloo, Iowa; Monnet, Mo., and Kenton, Ohio, were removed from the substantial list.

Angel City, Calif.; Bangor, Maine; Fillmore, Utah; Quincy, Fla., and Kerrville, Tex., were added to the substantial list.

The department includes 863 areas in its designation of substantial and persistent unemployment, 51 judged "major" and 609 others.

Hodgson cites gains on builder inflation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson Friday said inflation is being overcome in the construction industry, but called for even further restraint on construction pay raises.

Meanwhile, the Pay Board announced it will not require that its 5.5 per cent pay raise standard be applied strictly to union construction wages.

It granted the Construction Industry Stabilization Committee broad power to approve construction contracts essentially on its own terms. In return it received a general promise that construction pay raises, currently down to about 11 per cent in new contracts, would be lowered somewhat this year.

HODGSON, after a session with President Nixon, told newsmen at the White House that the CISC will shoot for "new targets to bring down even from the present point the wage adjustments." He did not set any target figure, however.

He said President Nixon was so pleased with progress of the CISC and a construction bargaining commission that he ordered "make sure the story gets told."

Meanwhile, across town, the Pay Board announced it would retain at least nominal authority over the CISC, requiring it to make regular reports, consult about any unusually important decisions and get advance approval before making any significant press releases.

BUT IT required the construction committee to administer Pay Board policies only "to the extent applicable ..."

The decision was made Wednesday by unanimous vote, but announcement was held up until late Friday.

Cost of Living Council director Donald Rumsfeld issued a statement calling the action "a further forward step in carrying out the stabilization program."

"Under it the CISC can continue the progress it has made in restoring wage stability to this critical sector of the economy," he said.

The construction committee, a 12-member labor-public-business board, was set up by President Nixon last March 29, well before the general wage freeze of Aug. 15, to moderate inflationary wage settlements in the construction industry.

CISC Chairman John T. Dunlop, a Harvard University dean, has said first-year pay raises in union construction contracts have gone down from an average of 19 per cent before his committee began operations to around 11 per cent.

This, however, is about

JAMES D. HODGSON
Tells of New Targets

double the 5.5 per cent guideline for pay raises that the Pay Board has set for the economy as a whole.

Last December the Pay Board summoned Dunlop to explain his committee's operations, then limited his authority to act on any contracts reached after last Nov. 14. Meanwhile a joint subcommittee of the two panels worked out rules to govern construction pay.

Those rules, approved unanimously by both panels, give the CISC broad power to deal with a welter of problems unique to the construction industry, including historic pay relationships between different crafts and federal laws requiring that certain wage rates be paid in certain circumstances.

HODGSON said the number of construction industry strikes is down from 424 in 1970 to 232 in 1971.

He also said that the duration of strikes dropped from an average of 42 days in 1970 to 31 days last year.

"In every quarter for the previous two years the level of wage increases went up and up," he said, "but they came down from 16 per cent a year ago to 10-12 per cent this year 1971," he added.

He said there was more construction in 1971 in every section of the industry than the previous year and that the number of new homes begun increased from 1.3 million to 2 million.

The CISC's new rules, called "substantive policies," call for the panel to act only "in the framework of the general regulations of the Pay Board." But they say flatly that in many instances these regulations will not apply because of the industry's special problems.

AMONG the newly approved policies is one calling for prompt review of any previously agreed future pay raises that "would cause destabilizing effect."

Business members of the Pay Board have said they intend to seek review of any deferred increases exceeding 7 per cent a year, a move aimed chiefly at the construction industry, where scheduled raises average 11.6 per cent for 1972.

On Friday, a CISC spokesman conceded the panel has secretly approved about 100 contracts since it ceased giving public reports of its actions last Dec. 3.

The spokesman said the panel thought the Pay Board had ordered the news blackout, but a Pay Board spokesman said no such order had been issued and the whole matter was a misunderstanding.

Customs chief to head drug assault

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Declaring that "the most despicable criminal is the drug pusher," President Nixon Friday ordered a $15 million, federally coordinated drive using special prosecutors and grand juries in two dozen cities to rid the streets of drug traffickers.

Nixon signed an executive order creating an Office of Drug Abuse Law Enforcement in the Justice Department to be headed by Customs Commissioner Myles J. Ambrose, who indicated that local efforts to eliminate drug pushers were faltering because of police corruption.

Ambrose, 45, a New Yorker and former Treasury narcotics agent himself, told newsmen the new agency "will deal with the whole gamut of narcotics traffic, from the poppy fields in Turkey to peddlers in the street."

HE SAID the government would hire 150 to 200 lawyers around the country to form a network of investigative and prosecution units, using special grand juries authorized under the Organized Crime Control Act of 1970 and operating from nine regional centers.

The Justice Department said the 24 cities and nine regional centers involved in the new program had not been selected. Ambrose said he hoped it would get under way in about three or four weeks.

In cooperation with teams of local police and prosecutors, the drive will use "new techniques and systems of intelligence" to expose and eliminate street peddlers of narcotics, Ambrose said.

and the Treasury's Customs Bureau, which have clashed sharply over jurisdictions in the past.

THE ORGANIZATION of the new drug effort closely parallels that of the "strike forces" which have claimed success against organized crime by coordinating activities of federal agencies with local and state authorities.

Nixon said, "I believe the penalties should be adequate for the crime, but we have to move to have a more efficient law enforcement body recognizing that the state and local government will work unless men cooperate."

Attorney General John N. Mitchell said the "system of law enforcement has not worked out for various reasons I will not go into" and that "we're going to use federal tools to approach this problem."

While denying that the campaign represented a federal takeover of the fight against drug pushers, Ambrose made it clear that police corruption at the local level was one reason more federal narcotics agents were needed.

POLICE corruption in narcotics is "a fairly new phenomenon," Ambrose said. "It appears to be a factor" in drug traffic, but "how important it is, I cannot tell you." He gave no examples of what he meant.

FBI statistics show that 451,000 persons were arrested in 1970 for drug offenses, an increase of 44 per cent over the previous year. More than half those arrested were under 21 years of age.

Ambrose said there were an estimated 55,000 drug addicts when he left the Treasury Department in 1960 to become customs commissioner. Now, he said, there are half a million.

Ribicoff gives up on welfare reform in '72

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., Friday angrily abandoned his drive for passage of a welfare reform program this year, charging President Nixon "doesn't really believe in it."

Ribicoff, leader of liberal efforts to improve on Nixon's proposals to guarantee every needy family a minimum annual income, recommended instead a small pilot project to see if the approach "really works."

Saccharin suspect as food additive

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration ordered the first limits Friday on the use of saccharin, citing preliminary evidence that rats develop bladder tumors when fed extremely high levels of the artificial sweetener.

Scientists have not determined whether the tumors are cancerous, which would ban saccharin from diet foods and beverages, the FDA said.

Saccharin, widely used as a food additive for more than 80 years, has been the only artificial sweetener available since cyclamates were identified as carcinogenic and removed from the market in 1969.

The FDA said its order, published in the Federal Register, is designed to

Lawmaker urges blood bank curbs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Saying there are at least 3,500 deaths a year in this country from contaminated blood transfusions, Rep. John S. Monagan, D-Conn., Friday introduced a bill that would establish stringent government regulations for all blood banks.

Under the measure, a national blood bank program would be established by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare "to inspect, license and regulate all blood banks."

Monagan said regulations affecting the collection of blood were "practically nonexistent."

"Seventeen states have no regulation affecting blood banks, he said, while 21 states have laws which prohibit patients affected by the diseased blood from suing under a breach of

Chrysler hikes Colt tab by $69

DETROIT, Mich. (AP) — Chrysler Corp. announced Friday it is raising the price of its Japanese built Dodge Colt an average of 3.2 per cent, or $69.

Chrysler said the price change reflects the international currency revaluation and increased manufacturing costs in Japan. The price increase is effective on all cars shipped since the currency revaluation took effect.

The Colt is built for Chrysler by Mitsubishi Motors Ltd.

The price of the basic two-door Colt coupe is increased $46 from $2,049 to $2,095. The top-of-the-line station wagon goes up $72 from $2,379 to $2,451.

Prices of other Chrysler products are not affected.

Gov. Reagan will oppose the welfare reform plan in Washington next week. Story, Page A-6.

Nixon's target of July 1, 1973, "without having one God-awful snarl and tying this nation in knots."

"I'm trying to salvage something out of this," he said at a Senate Finance Committee hearing on the legislation. "The idea is good. But the President doesn't really believe in it."

THE $5.5-BILLION welfare-reform bill, which twice has passed the House, would guarantee a needy family of four a minimum income of $2,400 a year.

Ribicoff has proposed an alternative plan backed by a coalition of labor, church and state government leaders to begin with a guaranteed income of $3,000 a year for a family of four rising to the $4,000 poverty level by 1976. His plan differed sharply from the administration recommendations in other areas, too.

Later, Ribicoff told newsmen he would keep pushing for several of his original objectives — such as greater federal assumption of state welfare costs and greatly expanded day-care services. But he said he would introduce soon a new pilot approach.

QUICK endorsement of his go-slow idea came from Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., the committee chairman, and a number of Republican members. The committee solidly backed pilot programs in the 1970 welfare-reform bill that never became law.

Earlier, Long interrupted a witness to predict the committee would make "drastic changes" in the House-passed bill, which he has promised the White House to have on the Senate floor by about March 1.

Ribicoff complained the time-span is just too short for the administration to gear up by next year for such a major revision of welfare.

"LIKE MOST politicians, they're kidding the people," Ribicoff said. "If we gave them everything they want now, they would bog down with one of the greatest social and economic failures in history."

A HEW report earlier this week pictured Ribicoff's proposals as more expensive and tending to increase welfare rolls faster than he has been estimating.

Twelve organizations, ranging from the U.S. Catholic Conference, the organization of bishops, to 55,000-member National Association of Social Workers sent representatives to testify Friday.

Almost all complained the contemplated $2,400 payment would be too low. The social workers opposed the entire bill as too weak, saying it "will not end the blatant inequities, injustices and inhumanity which have been allowed to grow in the present system."

Tax-form mail mixup cost set at $2.5 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — "A not so funny comedy of errors," Sen. Frank Moss said Friday of what he called a $2.5-million mixup that resulted in mailing this year's tax forms first class, instead of third class.

"The American taxpayer, I expect, will find little comfort in the fact that the federal government has squandered millions of dollars in tax money before it has even been collected," the Utah Democrat said.

Normally, tax forms are sent as third-class postage after the Christmas rush. Moss said Internal Revenue Service officials told him that even though they were being billed more in the mixup, "the tax forms only received third-class treatment," arriving later, generally, than first-class mail.

practices and lax Agriculture Department enforcement, a Consumer News-letter editor said Friday.

Harris Wellford, who works for Ralph Nader's Center for the Study of Responsive Law, said nearly 400 of the 1,000 inspectors offered the publication at $3 a year had subscribed.

He said nearly all the subscribers enclosed an item or two about what they had encountered. "Virtually every one has his little horror story to tell," he said. "The response has been incredible, amazing."

The first issue of the newsletter, eventually to be offered to all government food inspectors, contained the statement: "This newsletter for the first time opens a direct line of communication between the meat and poultry inspectors and the consumer. Its goal is to provide a voice for the inspector which will not be muffled by politics and conflict of interest at the regional or Washington level."

Opposes Nixon welfare plan

Reagan takes his plan to Senate hearing

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Reagan will try to persuade Congress next week to junk key parts of President Nixon's welfare reform plan and accept instead his own California reform proposals as the core of new federal welfare law.

If the amendments are accepted, he'll drop his fight against Nixon's plan, known as H.R. 1, and back the bill, aides to the Republican governor revealed Friday.

Reagan will make the attempt in an appearance before the Senate Finance Committee in Washington next Tuesday, trying to persuade the committee to accept some welfare reforms that Reagan couldn't even push through the Democrat-dominated California legislature last year.

Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., has said he plans to send a version of the Nixon welfare reform plan to the full Senate by March 1.

"There is no longer any chance to kill it outright," explained James E. Jenkins, Reagan's director of public affairs who briefed newsmen Friday on the Republican governor's plans.

But Jenkins said he expects the governor to publicly fight the bill if it comes up for final passage without some or all of his proposed changes.

It will be the first time in more than five years as governor that Reagan has testified before a Congressional committee, Reagan also has been invited to have dinner Tuesday night at the White House, Jenkins said.

Asked if he thought the new Reagan plan ended an era of good feeling between Reagan and Nixon, Jenkins said, "No. I don't think so. The President is not against any kind of reform that would work."

But Jenkins said he expected Nixon administration officials to oppose the Reagan amendments since they had opposed similar proposals suggested to the committee earlier.

The lengthy amendments Reagan will submit to the committee would wipe out Nixon's proposal for a $2,400 minimum guaranteed annual income for poor people and the federalization of welfare administration.

It would maintain the present system of shared state and federal welfare payments with state and local control.

Jenkins declined to go into the proposals in detail but said some of the changes Reagan will seek include tighter eligibility requirements for getting on welfare, more emphasis on job training, putting welfare recipients to work and retaining state control of welfare.

Jenkins said the state and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare differ by as much as $300 million over the effect of the Nixon plan on California.

HEW officials argue that California will save $230 million by implementation of the federal plan, Jenkins said. The California Chamber of Commerce estimates it would cost the state $94 million more and Jenkins said the administration thinks the chamber is correct.

Reagan achieved partial reform of the California system in a compromise agreement worked out with Democratic leaders in the legislature last summer but implementation of much of the plan has been stymied by court tests.

A Reagan-backed bill introduced in the California Senate this week contains much of the governor's original proposals.

Jenkins said all the governors were invited by Long to testify on the House-passed welfare plan and Reagan decided to appear before a Congressional committee for the first time as governor because "he thinks the welfare problem is the most serious domestic problem to face the country in many, many years."

Four other governors have appeared before the committee and all testified in favor of the Nixon plan as currently written, Jenkins noted.

Reagan is scheduled to make a 10-minute presentation and then answer questions from the senators.

Jenkins declined to guess what Reagan's chances were of persuading the committee to amend the bill but said "there is a much better chance in the committee than on the floor. This is our best shot."

Berkeley to free users, boozers

BERKELEY (UPI) — A new "go easy" policy on public drunks and persons high on drugs will be started next week by the Berkeley Police Department.

Chief Bruce Baker said the new policy will not apply to drunk drivers, drug users openly carrying narcotics, persons committing crimes, or people with known histories of intoxication.

But other persons found intoxicated or high "will not be incarcerated, whenever possible." He said treating drunkenness as a crime "isn't achieving very much."

VD class in school held vital

SACRAMENTO (AP) — High school students need and are mature enough to handle courses that concern venereal disease and how to avoid it, the head of the California Association of Student Councils said Friday.

Ken Hannford of Monte Vista High School in Cupertino said in an interview that there is a need to make people aware of the problem, which has reached epidemic proportions.

"A simple solution would be to make having sex illegal," Hannford said, "but you can't legislate morality."

He said he thought more high school students were having sex today than a decade ago.

A task force appointed by the state last year found that there were about 100,000 persons, most of them women, acting as carriers of gonorrhea in California alone.

Gov. Reagan vetoed a measure by Assemblywoman March Fong, D-Oakland, last session that would have permitted VD instruction in public schools without parental consent or notification.

Mrs. Fong has introduced a similar measure this year that she says the governor can't afford to veto again.

Endorsement for Nixon peace plan

RONALD REAGAN
Calls for Unity

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The "fighting and dying will continue" in Vietnam unless the American people unite behind President Nixon's withdrawal offer, Gov. Reagan told 500 teenage delegates to the YMCA model legislature Friday.

"Some of the people who say 'get out now' are stupid in regard to the logistics," Reagan added. He said he believes six months time is needed just to get 139,000 American troops out of Vietnam.

"The enemy... they want to know, do the people of the United States support this program," the Republican governor said. "The enemy wants to hear the voice of the people."

Reagan said he urges leaders of all segments of society, including youth, to pass resolutions, adopt statements and make it known they support Nixon's latest proposal.

If that doesn't happen, "the fighting and dying will continue," he said.

Reagan called the Nixon plan "a proposal so unique there has never been anything like it before in the annals of history." He praised it a plan with "no victor, no vanquished."

"If the enemy will not accept this, the United States cannot abandon the 200 men in North Vietnamese prisons," Reagan added, indicating he believes U.S. involvement in the war must continue if the plan is rejected.

Reagan also told some of the young delegates after his speech that Chappaquiddick is still an issue in the possible presidential aspirations of Sen. Edward Kennedy.

Asked what he thought

Audience applauds Governor ridicules legal pot

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan told a youth conference Friday the legalization of marijuana "would be the most ridiculous thing we ever did in the world."

He said such a step would, in effect, "create a new product with millions of potential customers" and that manufacturers would promote marijuana on billboards and marijuana cigarettes could be easily purchased from sidewalk vending machines.

Some, he said, might base a marijuana sales campaign on "Fly to New York without Wings" or "Ours Will Get You Stoned Better than the Other Fellows."

Reagan made the remarks during a question and answer session following a brief speech to the 24th annual meeting of the YMCA "model legislature."

He was loudly applauded.

"Okay, if martinis were a crutch for my generation, what makes your generation so much better because you just have a different kind of crutch?" he asked. "How about being the generation that doesn't have any crutch at all?"

As for lowering the drinking age from 21 to 18, which he opposes, Reagan told the estimated 750 youngsters, "you really don't want to start drinking at 18 do you? Look at what it did to our generation."

He also defended his veto of a bill which would have allowed minors to obtain contraceptives without their parent's consent as a move to keep the government's "nose" out of the family relationship.

"It seems to me the government has no business injecting itself into family relations," he said.

Open Space Act controversy

FRESNO (UPI) — California's Open Space Act, passed in 1965 to stem the ever-burgeoning encroachment of urban sprawl upon prime farmland, has become a point of controversy.

"City dwellers contend it has unfairly burdened them with taxes and at least two lawsuits have been filed in attempts to halt operation of the act."

But what about the original objectives of the California Land Conservation Act of 1965, such as preservation of farmland?

According to University of California economist Dr. William W. Wood Jr., the open-space program "has not been a howling success." But he does not advocate its repeal.

At the core of the program are its provisions giving landowners a tax rate based on the land's actual value as farmland rather than its market value.

The farmer who wishes to participate signs a contract that he will permit no development on his land for a certain period in exchange for the lower tax rate.

Dr. Wood, in written testimony submitted to the U.S. Senate subcommittee on migratory labor hearings here recently, says the conservation act has five stated or implied objectives. Most of them have not been achieved.

His list of objectives and the degree of achievement he believes has been accomplished is as follows:

—To save prime productive farmland. Only about one-quarter of the 9.5 million acres under contract is prime farmland. "As a result, one would conclude the act has had only minimal success in achieving this objective," he said.

—To facilitate more effective local land-use planning. "With minor exceptions, such as the County of Napa, this act has not succeeded in achieving this objective."

—To retain open space. Dr. Wood said since there is substantial acreage under contract "one might attribute partial success in achieving this objective except that open space remains a vague concept."

—To avoid "leapfrog" urban development. "This objective has not been achieved," he states.

Dr. Wood said the reasons for such limited success stem from the fact that the statute is not mandatory — Los Angeles, Merced and Sutter counties are not in the program — and the incentives offered.

Wood said the incentive of reduced property taxation has the strongest economic appeal to the least productive land such as rangeland.

However, Dr. Wood does not believe the Williamson Act should be repealed as some critics demand.

"With all its faults, it is at least a start toward achieving an effective land-use policy, he said.

Sewage in Sacramento Delta poses potential health threat

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Because of loopholes in the law, ships and boats are spewing 20 million gallons of raw sewage each year into the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta, it was reported Friday.

The pollution is posing a potential health threat because the water is vital for home use by millions of Californians, according to a staff report presented at a hearing of the Central Valley Regional Water Quality Control Board.

As a first step toward solving the problem, the staff urged that the approximately 300 houseboats which ply the delta and two large Northern California lakes be barred from dumping untreated sewage. The board agreed to consider such a regulation at next month's meeting.

THE RULE, apply to the Delta and Clear and Shasta lakes, probably would go into effect June 1, 1973, the board's staff said.

"It's almost impossible to catch somebody discharging refuse or sewage over the side of a boat," water control engineer Ted Fenner said in an interview after the hearing.

"I've been patrolling the delta for the last 17 years and I have never caught anybody," Fenner said.

HE ADMITTED that he and another man constitute the whole staff patrolling the area, and they have to cover five counties so can only spend four or five days a year on the delta trying to catch offenders.

The regulation was only aimed at the houseboat operators, Fenner explained, because it would be physically impossible to police the thousands of private and military vessels in the area.

"At the moment we're trying to be practical," Fenner said. "We don't have the staff to go around checking on all the private boat owners."

The board voted to consider the matter Feb. 25 at a Bakersfield meeting.

The regulation being considered would apply only to about 190 delta houseboats and some 110 similar craft on Shasta and Clear lakes.

PRESENT state and federal laws governing sewage dumping on waterways, the staff report said, are inadequate and full of loopholes.

"Even the existing regulations aren't enforced," Fenner said, noting that state law applies to "navigable waterways" and there is much confusion over which parts of the delta qualify under these laws.

Under state law violation of dumping regulations is a misdemeanor which could result in a fine of up to $6,000 a day, he added.

Tunnel explosion mistrial averted

A mistrial was averted in the trial of Lockheed Shipbuilding and Construction Co. and its safety engineer Friday when the judge, newly promoted, was assigned to remain on the case.

Gov. Reagan elevated Municipal Court Judge Robert C. Nye to the Los Angeles Superior Court but Nye was directed by presiding Judge Charles A. Loring to stay on the case. Both prosecution and defense agreed to move.

Similar developments have resulted in mistrials in other cases.

Nye told newsmen his appointment was "sheer coincidence" with a legislative investigation of the state Division of Industrial Safety.

Lockheed and safety engineer Otha G. Ree Jr., 46, are each charged with seven misdemeanor violations of the labor code and one violation of the penal code.

The charges involve various safety requirements set up by industrial safety inspectors after the Sylmar tunnel blast, in which 17 workers died.

Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-North Hollywood, has accused the safety division of being at fault. Moretti demanded the resignations Thursday of three key officials, saying the deaths could have been prevented if the tunnel had been shut down after a flash fire the night before the explosion.

A state Assembly committee investigating the division has accused officials of failing to enforce the state safety code even though they knew of violations.

Nye was sworn in by Loring to replace Judge Beach Vasey, who has retired.

Reagan to ask U.S. to 'thaw' state merit pay

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Reagan said Friday he will ask the federal Pay Board to unfreeze state employee merit pay raises delayed by President Nixon's wage-price freeze.

If the Pay Board approves Reagan's request, merit salary adjustments frozen from Aug. 15 to Nov. 13 could be paid retroactively.

Reagan said he has ordered State Finance Director approval from the Pay Board.

Most state jobs have salary scales giving pay raises based on experience in the job. Employees are entitled to five per cent merit advances until the top step in each position is reached.

64,000 jobs for Vietnam vets

The National Alliance of Businessmen has received 64,000 pledges nationwide for jobs for returning Vietnam veterans to meet a goal of 100,000 job openings by June, chairman John Harper said Friday.

In addition, the national NAB goal for jobs for the disadvantaged is 225,000 during 1972, Harper said in Los Angeles.

U.S. called wrecker in space field

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

The U.S. government is destroying the space industry more effectively than action by any foreign power, an official of the California Society of Professional Engineers testified in a state hearing in Santa Ana Friday.

Robert J. Kuntz said that the federal government is damaging the space industry by frequent cancellation of defense and space programs.

This "undermines the hopes" of aerospace leadership, he said.

KUNTZ testified before the State Legislature's Joint Committee on Atomic Development and Space, headed by Assemblyman Robert Badham, R-Newport Beach.

He spelled out a program calling for expansion of government underwriting of the Small Business Administration to help aerospace workers go into business for themselves, stepped up research for civilian uses of the unemployed, research and development programs to aid the civilian economy, and the realization that the nation's scientific and technical base is "a valuable resource."

James A. Cook, executive director of the California Space Shuttle Task Force, said the space shuttle program could save a large segment of unemployed aerospace workers.

THAT PROGRAM could be under way by mid-1972, but more likely not until 1975, Cook said.

He said it would provide up to 50,000 jobs.

Other speakers pleaded for development of environmental solutions and public administration and a host of other jobs for unemployed aerospace personnel.

Badham's committee was told, however, that many of the jobless are highly trained scientists, capable chiefly in one major discipline, and not readily able to be retrained.

Most of those placed in other jobs, either on their own, or through retraining, were holding lesser positions in the aerospace industry, the committee was told. These included technicians and technologists whose skills were more readily adaptable to civilian enterprises.

FAILURE of the government to bolster the aerospace program will mean that this nation's technological advantage will sink to second place by 1975, warned K. R. Kiddoo, who directs manpower resources for Lockheed Aircraft Corp. at Burbank. He said that this would pose a great danger to the national security.

No matter what the government does to retrain aerospace workers, the fact remains that the top scientists, skilled in limited fields, cannot find work in private industry, the committee was told.

Government must provide them with jobs in a space program because no jobs exist in private enterprise, and no comparable jobs can be created, it was claimed.

THE SPACE industry is not unaccustomed to the boom and bust cycle, but California has learned not to rely on this industry, according to Dr. Robert C. Parry, economist for Security Pacific National Bank. He said, however, that "aerospace after many generations of dealing with the government has been hampered by a lack of marketing experience in the private sector." So have aerospace workers who have sought to go into business for themselves.

He predicted, however, that the aerospace industry will change its direction.

"An industry which experienced a change from aircraft manufacturing to space exploration in just over a decade can change again," Dr. Parry concluded. He added that "the change is mandatory."

UAW head endorses Muskie, likes Humphrey, McGovern

United Press International
United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock endorsed Sen. Edmund S. Muskie for the Democratic presidential nomination Friday as one who can lead the nation to victory over the politics of fear.

"I saw him in the campaign of 1968 reaching across our deep divisions to those who were ready to give up on the system," Woodcock said of the former vice presidential nominee in a speech at the National Press Club.
"I saw him on election eve in 1970, a voice of reason and decency appealing to our best traditions. I see him now leading us to victory over the politics of fear," Woodcock said.
But the leader of the 1.3 million-member UAW, second in size only to the 2 million-member Teamsters brotherhood, said he could "enthusiastically support" Sens. George S. McGovern or Hubert H. Humphrey. He said McGovern is "programmatically the closest to the political position of the UAW."
Two weeks ago President Jerry Wurf of the 525,000-member American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees endorsed Muskie. Ohio UAW officials and union leaders in New Hampshire, site of the nation's first primary, also are supporting him.
Humphrey, who chose Muskie as his running mate in 1968, told political action representatives of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers that the Nixon administration is trying to convince the American people that high unemployment is an economic fact of life and they had better get used to it.

"I don't buy it, the machinists won't buy it and the American people won't buy it," Humphrey said.
Referring to a recent

HUBERT HUMPHREY

speech in which Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr. suggested that labor was demanding too much and doing too little, Humphrey said: "That's the biggest bit of political garbage ever put on the political landscape."
McGovern, promising to do the same thing every year if he is elected president, released a personal financial statement, meantime, showing net assets of $271,000 and 1971 income of $89,100.
"In light of the vast power of the presidential office, it is obvious that we cannot afford the slightest room for doubt that whoever occupies that office has an exclusive commitment to the public interest," said McGovern, son of a Wesleyan Methodist minister. He promised to reveal all contributors to his campaign as soon as his list is finished.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson said he would comply with the Florida law and list Florida contributors but would not disclose his nationwide list of financial supporters, adding "people who make contributions have a right to know in advance whether they'll be listed." Two weeks ago Muskie said that he would not unilaterally disclose the names of his contributors.

Muskie, McGovern and New York Mayor John V. Lindsay campaigned in the populous greater Miami area in the preparation for the March 14 primary; Jackson was in Tallahassee, and Alabama Gov. George O. Wallace was in Jacksonville.

Lindsay, in a grim mood after the killings of two police officers back home in New York City, accused the Nixon administration Friday of failing to sponsor tough national legislation controlling handguns.

Throwing away the day's prepared scripts, Lindsay told audiences at a junior college, a college, and a high school in Miami, Fla., he felt "outrage, frustration, bitterness and anger" over the sayings on Manhattan's Lower East Side Thursday night.

"The police of this country have a right to protection," Lindsay said. "The fact that Washington, D.C., from the President on down, has done nothing is to me the worst of kind of permissiveness — violence permissiveness."

Rep. John M. Ashbrook, the conservative Republican challenger of Nixon, said administration plans to give $2.5 billion in aid to North Vietnam after the war ends "is just too much to take."

"I do not believe that the American people approve of what amounts to compensating our enemy for the slaughter of 45,000 Americans in southeast Asia," Ashbrook said in a statement.

Florida, Wisconsin 'musts' HHH sees 2 key primaries

By AL EISELE
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Hubert Humphrey indicated Friday that his presidential candidacy could not survive a poor showing in the Florida and Wisconsin primaries.

"I hate to rule myself out because there are some big primaries after those, but Florida and Wisconsin will have a tremendous effect on my candidacy one way or another," Humphrey said after returning from a two-day visit to Wisconsin and before leaving for a weekend trip to Florida.

"If I win or come close to winning, then I really believe I'm on the victory road. But if I lose big, then I think I would be on the downhill trail. I would say it would look very difficult ahead and surely dampen our enthusiasm."

HOWEVER, Humphrey emphasized that he expects to do well in both the March 14 Florida contest and the April 4 Wisconsin primary, the first two he is entered in. He said his polls show him in a "nip and tuck" battle with George Wallace in Florida while his chief rival, Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, runs third, and that his reception in Wisconsin this week was "very encouraging."

At the same time, Humphrey said he has decided to enter the May primary in West Virginia, where he was knocked out of the 1960 presidential race after being badly defeated by John F. Kennedy. "We have some memories of West Virginia," he said. "It seems like we'd like to try it again."

West Virginia would be the ninth primary Humphrey has entered. In addition to Florida and Wisconsin, he is already a candidate in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Nebraska, Maryland, New Jersey and California. He is expected to enter about half of the nation's twenty-three primaries.

HUMPHREY termed California critical to his hopes Friday when he announced that Rep. Chet Holifield, the dean of the California congressional delegation, has agreed to serve as chairman of his California campaign.

However, Humphrey expressed disappointment at the decision of Pennsylvania Governor Milton Shapp earlier this week to endorse Muskie. He said Shapp assured him at a Dec. 27 meeting in Philadelphia that he would remain neutral.

"I'm not angry and I'm not worried about it," said Humphrey. "I took him at his word and apparently he changed his mind. But I don't think it's going to make any appreciable difference. We're well organized and we've got a broad base of support in Pennsylvania."

Students flexing political muscle

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Student government leaders representing more than 100 California campuses of higher education said Friday the state's young people have "real political muscle" for the first time, "and this is just the beginning."

The leaders announced at a Greater Los Angeles Press Club news conference formation of the California Campus Coalition (CCC), to knit the independent political activities from all campuses into one thrust for student participation in electoral politics.

NEWLY registered young people will help name party nominees in the June 6 primary, they said. And, before that, they will have a voice in Feb. 12 statewide Democratic caucuses to help determine the makeup of the various candidates' national convention delegations.

At the news conference were Jeff Gordon, CCC chairman; Edward L. Mayfield, San Diego City College student body president and president of the California Community College Student Government Association; Steve Chadi-ma, UC Irvine student body president, and Mike Shapiro, California State College, Los Angeles.

Coalition policy is not to endorse candidates or political parties, they said, but pointed out that a projection of their registration efforts shows that it will be "extremely difficult, if not impossible, for Richard Nixon to win California's electoral votes in 1972."

THEY FORESAW major political changes and upsets and said they would be directly due to newly enfranchised voters.

O'Brien suggests Connally may quit

WASHINGTON — Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien said Friday he "would not be surprised" if Treasury Secretary John Connally resigns and returns to Texas before this fall's presidential campaign.

O'Brien conceded, however, that "I don't have any hard facts" to support his statement, made to a group of reporters Thursday and in an interview Friday.

CONNALLY made no direct comment, but an aide termed it "ridiculous" after conferring with the secretary. The aide also said there are no indications around the Treasury that any such thing is in the works.

O'Brien's statement came in the wake of a series of speculative reports both in Washington and Texas that Connally was planning to return to his Texas law practice and his role as de facto leader of the state's Democratic Party.

The Democratic national chairman termed his statement "a reflection of things you hear from time to time," adding it represented talk he had heard both in Texas and Washington.

Democratic Party Treasurer Robert S. Strauss, a fellow Texan who is a close personal friend of Connally, said he didn't know anything about the possible departure of the secretary.

In the past, Strauss has downgraded reports that Connally might become a Republican and possibly replace Vice President Spiro T. Agnew on the GOP ticket.

Connally was elected governor of Texas three times on the Democratic ticket before declining to seek a fourth two-year term in 1968.

"HE CAME up here to do a job," Strauss told a reporter.

* * * GARDENING * * *

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

We have discussed Proteas but have learned since then, that the plants also need a mulch over the top of the soil that is around them. This point was brought up by Cecil Eshelman a wholesaler who grows the plants from seeds imported from South Africa, New Zealand and Australia. The mulching was recommended because of the excessive heat we had at that time. The mulch may be fine ground bark, compost soil, leaf mold, or planting mix mulch.

The proteas genus we discussed are Banksia, Leucadendron, Protea, and another one named Leucospermum nutans, which is included in this group, yet Bailey's Horticultural Encyclopedia doesn't even list it.

A Leucospermum nutans shrub grows about four feet high and spreads out five feet. One mature shrub had 150 puff-ball like, vivid orange blossoms. Good cut flowers can be taken but unlike most of the proteas they don't hold up as dry-arrangement blossoms. Such a bush needs all the sun possible, except in the hottest areas. It needs good drainage, acid soil condition, and acid type fertilizer.

Watering is critical for all proteas. They should be planted where the garden-er controls the watering. Gladiolus are rated America's favorite bulb cut flowers, due to the "new hybrid" gladiolus wide range of brilliant colors.

The new glads are superior to varieties that were distributed five to 10 years ago. Today's glads produce 20 or more huge perfectly formed florets, each measuring up to four-to-six inches across on strong four-to-five foot spikes. They come in shades of blue, violet, green and purple. Besides the various solid colors, there are also many multicolored varieties that have combinations of two, three, and even four colors in each floret. Gardeners can plant glads in their favorite color and even pick out hues that match their interior decorating when the spikes are cut for arrangements in the home.

The five outstanding new glad introductions are Banana Split a ruffled golden yellow with red throat markings... Blue Lagoon is the bluest of all glads... Confetti a fancy frilled pink with bold red and yellow throat markings... Red Butterfly a vivid salmon red with touch of ruby and cream in the throat... Rhapsody a soft salmon pink with sharp red thumb print in the heart of each floret.

Plant in sunny area a dozen or more glads in irregular shape groups, the bulbs spaced about six inches apart. Soil should be moist before planting. Mix a teaspoon of bone meal in the bottom of each six inch deep hole, set the bulb in prepared soil. Bulbs may be planted four to five inches deep in clay soil.

Which 4 for the Spotlight? Krol vs. Drinan, the 'Children'

By LES RODNEY

It's the week of the big guessing game in Long Beach.

Who will be the four recipients of the prestigious Spotlight Awards, as 1971's outstanding minister, churchman, churchwoman and youth?

The secret will be kept until the moment of announcement during the Friday banquet, which will be held this year in the large facilities of First Baptist Church, at 10th and Pine, starting 6:30 p.m.

The sixth annual awards, now a highlight on the community calendar, is held concurrent with the annual meeting (19th) of the Long Beach Area Council of Churches, whose new officers will be installed.

The Council is a cooperative agency for 53 Protestant churches—and several more will be received as new members Friday. It coordinates a lot of Christian activities, even down to lively sports leagues, including the recent volleyball league and basketball, now in full swing with 27 churches taking part in junior high and open competition.

Proceeds from the $5 per person banquet will go to the Council's Released Time Christian education program for school children, in its 27th year in Long Beach, in cooperation with the Roman Catholics and Evangelical Protestants.

Guest at the banquet will be Rev. Dr. Carl Segerhammer, president of the Pacific Southwest Synod of the Lutheran Church in America, by all accounts one of the more dynamically interesting speakers. He will also install the Council's new officers, headed by president Mrs. Thomas T. (Lunice) Sato, a community leader and active in Silverado United Methodist on the West Side. Stepping down after two fruitful years will be Rev. Dr. H. David Burckham of Covenant Presbyterian.

If the food is as good as I remember from a banquet in First Baptist during the church's 75th anniversary, those in attendance are due for an added treat.

THE NEW head of the American Roman Catholic Hierarchy, John Cardinal Krol of Philadelphia, does not believe that a priest ought to be in Congress.

Krol, who was elected president of the National Council of Catholic Bishops in November, said the church holds that a priest "is not to enter the world of partisan politics."

Asked in a television interview if this meant that Rev. Robert F. Drinan, a Boston Jesuit priest, ought to resign from Congress, the cardinal replied: "In the light of this teaching, I would say that Father Drinan is in partisan politics. Yes."

He said that the Synod of Bishops in Rome reaffirmed a church policy that a priest "is not to invade the competency of the laity" by entering politics or being "an agent of a dividing faction."

The cardinal added there may be exceptional cases such as in a country where there is a lack of educated laymen to take political roles, and even then, a priest should do so only with his bishop's permission.

Father Drinan was elevated last fall in Massachu-

Ministry for new vets

Presbyterians spark drive to help those who served

"Though the church and the nation have been divided and unclear about the war itself, we must not be ambivalent about meeting the needs of those who have returned from it."

So says Rev. Dean H. Lewis, executive of the United Presbyterian Department of Church of Society, which has established an emergency ministry to veterans of the Indochina war facing problems of employment, education, discrimination, disabilities and drugs.

The new program, known as an Emergency Ministry on Veterans' Services, became operative in January for a three-year period through the joint efforts of the denomination's Boards of Christian Education and National Missions and with the World Relief and Emergency Service Committee agreeing to underwrite the first annual budget of $70,000. Additional cooperative support has come from the United Presbyterian Department of Chaplains and Service Personnel, Presbyterian Women, Presbyterian Men, and other programs.

Developed in consultation with governmental agencies, the new ministry will join with Methodists, Southern Presbyterians, Baptists, Disciples of Christ and other groups in a common strategy through the National Council of Churches.

Over three million veterans of the Vietnam era, reentering U.S. society, face an unusual combination of discouragements, points out Rev. L. William Yoltan, secretary for Emergency Ministry on Concurrence and War of the United Presbyterian Church, one of the planners of the veterans program.

He notes that the Vietnam veteran faces a cold public reception compared to veterans of previous wars. His problems are greater, benefits are comparatively less, and half as many are taking advantage of their Bill of Rights, being either unaware of it or disillusioned with its meager provisions.

Unemployment among 20-29-year-old veterans is 33 per cent higher than for non-veterans. For black veterans in the same age group the rate is 100 per cent higher than for non-veterans. All veterans experience general discrimination related to disaffection about the war, Yoltan said. People express fear of the potential for violence the veteran may display and that he may be a drug user. Black and other minority veterans are especially subject to these prejudices in addition to the usual racial discrimination, although they have suffered greater casualties in the war, he added.

The problem of the Vietnam veteran affects every community and in the face of widespread general apathy, the Christian community has a responsibility to use its resources to assist these men and women and their families, Yoltan stressed.

Main parts of the program will consist of developing literature and training programs for veterans. Also provided will be outright grants and matching funds for projects which involve local resources for veteran services, assistance in individual cases, professional counseling, employment opportunities and drug rehabilitation efforts.

Though they may be initiated by Presbyterian, such projects should preferably be carried out by coalitions of religious, private, and public agencies. Major attention at the start will be given to assisting pastors and other professional counselors to obtain expertise for this new aspect of their ministry.

TO CAPITOL FOR PRAYER DAY

Mrs. Jan Pippenger, of Anaheim, left, chairman of Christian Common Cause, and Mrs. Eleanor Howe, prepare for trip to Sacramento where 1,000 persons are expected at the Capitol building Wednesday for a "Day of Prayer" organized by the local group. Mrs. Pippenger, a member of Central Baptist Church of Orange County, says there will be no picket signs, and that Gov. Reagan has been invited to join in the 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. prayer session.

GOINGS ON

Evangelist Chuck Garner and party will be at First Foursquare, 11th and Junipero, starting Sunday at 10 a.m. and 6 p.m., then Tuesday through Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and repeating the Sunday schedule. Garner reportedly was healed of leukemia five years ago, after being given two months to live. His unorthodox and spirit-filled services are never alike, says host pastor Billy Adams, who welcomes "all churches and races." With Garner are singer Peg Nelson, organist Roger Marks and pianist Carol De Jounett.

Dr. William H. Alamsah, professor of philosophy at Cal State Fullerton, will lecture and lead a discussion on "Morality and Ethics: Two Views of Family Life" Sunday, 7:30 p.m. in Lakewood First Presbyterian, 3955 Studebaker Road. He is author of two books, and has served as consultation to the management development program at Hughes Aircraft Co., and at Institute for Expansion of Human Consciousness.

Evangelist Dick Mills, said to minister to individuals' needs through specific Bible verses, will speak at the 10:50 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday services at Boulevard Assembly of God, 1551 Wilmington Blvd., Wilmington, and also to those of junior high age and older at 9:30 a.m. Evangelist Doug Clark, called an authority on the Book of Revelations, will begin a series of nightly meetings at 7:30 on Tuesday.

Evangelist Jack Garner of Texas, head of Gospel Tracts Fellowship, will speak at revival services Monday through Friday, 7:30 p.m. in Downey Baptist Temple, 12110 Pomeroy Road, with music every night, including on Friday "The Revelations," ten chorale of Central Baptist of Pomona.

Mrs. Frances Konopacki will lecture on "The Free Soul" Sunday 3 p.m. at Theological Society, 602 Pacific Ave.

sells, running as a Democrat on a record of having been a long-time foe of the Vietnam war.

He was one of several priests who ran for Congress, but the only one who made it. There was no objection raised at the time by the hierarchy.

Father Drinan, 50, is the first Catholic priest to be elected to Congress as a voting member. He was widely known in intellectual circles as an author and teacher, and served as a dean of the Boston College Law School.

It was the Vietnam war that convinced him to run.

"I've written books, I've taught," he said at the time, "but who reads or listens to professors. It's Congress that turns it around and I should be there."

He wears the Roman collar in the House. "It has been my life and I'm not ashamed of it," he says.

So far as we know, he has not reacted to Cardinal Krol's comments.

Youth help celebrate 50th

Immanuel Lutheran Church at 545 E. Carson St. will climax the first month of its 50th anniversary year Sunday with youth taking over completely at the 10 a.m. morning service, and an evening event for young people and others from various churches.

The 7:30 p.m. hour, with refreshments, will feature the Lord's Joyful, singing group from Christ Lutheran, Walter Ariles, and a message by seminarian Ron Gotberg, a member of Immanuel and student at Northwestern Theological Seminary in St. Paul. Gotberg will bring the message at the morning service.

Methodists make youthful mayors

Methodist mayors come young. When Ronald Hooker, 19, was elected mayor of Newcomerstown, Ohio, it was believed he was the youngest city chief executive in the nation. Now it turns out that Jody Smith, mayor of Ayshire, Iowa, is a few months younger. Both are active United Methodists.

Dr. Frank Collins

Dr. Monroe Parker is recognized as one of the great Bible preachers of this generation. He will be at Calvary Wednesday night, February 2, through Sunday, February 6.

Bible preaching has power. God says that preaching is his means of saving a man. "It pleased God through preaching to save those who believe." Preaching separates a man from unholy alliances and practices, for the "Word of God is sharper than a two-edged sword." Compromise with unbelievers will never be eliminated until God's Word is preached concerning separation from apostates. Bible preaching strengthens the believer. "Thy Word have I hid in mine heart that I might not sin against thee."

Great preaching will help you! It will help your home! It will help our communities! Come and hear this great preacher February 2-6.

This Sunday we are expecting a great day. Join us for Sunday School at 9:45; morning worship at eleven and evening service at seven. Come to Calvary! Calvary is for you!

has begun a celebration of its 100th year. The town was founded by Presbyterians for Presbyterians, but has gotten pretty ecumenical over the years. (Methodists, Baptists, Lutherans and such can now remain until 10 a.m. before being escorted to the border.) Seriously, the thriving church is planning big events for later in the year, and meanwhile, is looking forward to the visit next Sunday, Feb. 6, of the United Presbyterian Church national leader, newly elected moderator Mrs. Lois H. Stair, who will be pulpit guest.

"THE CHILDREN of God," described as an extreme youth cult on the fringe of the "Jesus Movement," was the subject of an editorial article in Christianity Today, leading conservative evangelical magazine. The article is largely critical.

"A dual code of ethics seems to prevail among the Children's leaders," it says. "Four-letter street vulgarities are common, and often used (sometimes on a allegedly biblical grounds) for shock value. Preachers frequently evade the truth in their approaches to businessmen. Some leaders justify lying, stealing and cheating to rip off Satan's system."

"The Children's regimented training program that stresses 'security' and unquestioning submission... lends itself to brainwashing techniques and inhibits the dynamic spontaneity of the Spirit," the editorial continues. "One result is that some Children seem more devoted to their cause than to Christ." Also, "Children tend to confront the world along the judgmental lines of the Old Testament prophets rather than in the New Testament spirit of love."

The article concludes: "Nevertheless, we also hope that those in the churches will not shut their doors or ears or hearts to the Children but will act out of compassion. Those who are sincerely misguided deserve an extra measure of patience and tolerance."

Anglican wins Friars award

The award to Archbishop Michael Ramsey says, "His diligence, honesty and compassion have won him the respect of his colleagues and friends in the Roman Catholic Church."

The friars praised the archbishop for his "distinguished service in the field of ecumenism."

Confident living 'Art of living' book is updated

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Thirty-four years ago I wrote my first book. It was just a little book, but it had an ambitious title: "The Art of Living." I dealt with the basic problems of people at the time — fear, tension, guilt, depression, defeat, to name a few — and suggested some workable solutions.

Nineteen books followed that first one and I found that in each succeeding period the problems of individuals remained pretty much the same despite differing political and sociological conditions. Indeed, there appears to be a continuity of human problems regardless of what year it is. Willa Cather aptly puts it this way: "There are only two or three human stories, and they go on repeating themselves as fiercely as if they had never happened before."

Well, recently I happened to re-read that first book, "The Art of Living," and was astonished to find that its message is pertinent for this "now" generation. So I decided to update the book, removing all references of the '30s and adding relevant illustrations from the '70s. I was startled by the fact that basic principles do not change. In revising the book, calling it "The New Art of Living," I found that the same answers to human need — faith, right thinking and love — still apply. The principles of creative and effective living, it appears, are timeless. Guess that's why the Bible never goes out of style. It is dateless.

I met a woman who seemed a person of peace and contentment. "But it wasn't always this way," she told me. "For years I was bitter and down on everything and everybody."

It seems that in her early 20s she became involved with a married man who gave her the old gag that he was wretchedly unhappy with his wife and she alone really understood him. She fell for it. The man, with whom she believed she was deeply in love, promised to marry her as soon as his divorce became final. This went on for over a year, and one day she learned that her lover had never even started divorce proceedings. Heartbroken and finally wise to him, she ended the affair. She left the community, got a job elsewhere and never saw the man again.

But two months later she learned that she was pregnant. What could she do? She carried the burden alone, too ashamed to go back to her family. At the end of the nine months she gave the baby up for adoption.

"For years after that," said the woman, "I was ridden with guilt and bitterness. I never married

"You could have just said you didn't like the hat! You didn't have to say it's an abomination!"

and I longed to know about the only child I ever had. I despised all men because of what one lousy male had done, which I realize now was childish and unreasonable. But life had treated me cruelly I felt, and I was determined never to be hurt again. As a result I lived a miserable life of utter loneliness and despair.

"One day," she continued, "I came across some of your writings and was persuaded to give better living a try. I began to get acquainted with myself and saw clearly what was wrong with me. I realized for the first time that even though I had made a bad mistake, I could still be a good, and happy person."

LEADS MISSION

Rey. Dennis J. Bennett, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal Church of Seattle, and a leader in behalf of the charismatic renewal, along with his wife Rita will be featured speaker at a four-day mission exploring the charismatic movement, Sunday, 7:30 p.m. in St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church, 7540 S. Passon Blvd., Pico-Rivera. Episcopal churches from Lynwood, Downey and Norwalk are taking part in the evangelistic program.

WHAT DID this woman do? She left a good-paying job, and offered her services in a home for unwed mothers. "I love my work," she told me elatedly. "It is just wonderful to take an interest in others. I have even become a temporary mother to some of these young girls, and make the time they are going through a little easier for them. I am a completely changed person. Every day is a joy!"

THE IRVING MYSTERY

Juan, Los Angeles, Florida and the Bahamas.

Second, there is a mass of handwriting on contracts and in letters that still is attributed by Irving to Hughes. Respected handwriting experts have said that, in their opinion, it was all written by Howard Hughes. But one of the "H.R. Hughes" signatures was an endorsement on a check signed in front of a Swiss bank cashier. The signer had identified herself as "Helga R. Hughes," and now Clifford Irving has said that she was in fact his wife, Edith.

THIRD, the editors at McGraw-Hill and Life Magazine, the Time subsidiary that was to publish excerpts from the book, made much in December and early January of the mass of detail purportedly recited to Irving by Hughes about the industrialist's romantic, bizarre and action-packed life. All this detail meant it had to be true, they said.

Only one detailed story from the manuscript has been disclosed.

The one incident recounted in the book that was thoroughly aired was the 1966 loan by the Hughes Tool Company to F. Donald Nixon, brother of the then vice president, Richard M. Nixon. Most of what was printed seems to have been the same information published in 1960 and would have been available through careful research.

BUT ONE element was new. It was said that Clark M. Clifford, secretary of defense in the Johnson administration and long a lawyer for Hughes Tool, had asked Hughes to make the loan.

Clifford has said that this was absolutely untrue. He said he had nothing whatsoever to do with the loan before, or after it was made.

For both publishing houses, this story begins in January, 1971, with Clifford Irving, then 40 years old, a tall, slim, lightly tanned man, casual in his demeanor and dress.

A native of New York who attended Cornell University and began writing seriously at the age of 22, he had traveled widely in search of what he calls basic truths in life. The search had taken him to a beatnik colony in California, a sampan in Bangkok, tiny rooms in various European locales, a schooner in the Atlantic and, finally, to a home on the Spanish island of Ibiza in the Mediterranean, where he lived with his fourth wife, the former Edith Sommer.

HIS FIRST novel, "On a Darkling Plain," was published in 1956. He published books in 1961, 1965 and 1969 at McGraw-Hill and, although he had done well, Irving had not produced a book with major sales. He was under contract for four fiction works over four years that would earn him $150,000 in advances against royalties.

His 1969 book was "Fake," which told the story of a forger of art works. The book has led to suits here and abroad by a Swiss art dealer, Fernand Legros, who contends that he was libeled and denies that he ever knowingly sold fakes painted by the subject of the book, an alleged art forger named Elmyr de Hory. Legros is seeking millions of dollars in damages.

Irving said he had sent a copy of "Fake" to Howard Hughes at the Desert Inn in Las Vegas, where Hughes lived before slipping away in the night before Thanksgiving, 1970. On Dec. 10, 1970, the writer said, he received a thank-you note from Hughes.

HUGHES'S spokesmen have said that the industrialist did not receive the book and that he did not write the note. Further, it was in this period that Hughes was heavily involved in litigation in Las Vegas over whether his other employees could supplant Robert A. Maheu as manager of the Hughes Nevada properties. His employees question whether he took time from this upheaval in his personal life and business affairs to write a thank-you note.

Irving told McGraw-Hill editors with whom he worked previously that he answered the Hughes letter and that he received others from Hughes on Jan. 8 and 20, 1971.

"At one point he called here and said he was going to meet with Hughes and wanted to know if he could say McGraw-Hill was his publisher if Hughes was willing to help with a biography," Robert Sussman Stewart, an editor who worked with Irving, said in an interview.

The McGraw-Hill editors told Irving to go ahead. Stewart, and Albert Leventhal, vice president of McGraw-Hill Book Company, a subsidiary that handled the Hughes book manuscript, said that from time to time in late winter a year ago they received calls and notes from Irving from various places that he later told them had been meeting spots for his talks with Hughes.

IRVING said that he first met Hughes in Oaxaca, Mexico, on Feb. 13 and in Tehuantepec, Mexico, on Feb. 14. They arranged their contract orally and signed it when they met again on March 4-5 in San Juan, Puerto Rico, Irving said.

Irving said that he took this contract to New York with him, and on March 23 signed a contract with McGraw-Hill to produce a book about Hughes. The publisher was to advance $100,000 immediately. The total advance against royalties was to be $500,000.

Heavy secrecy was demanded by Irving, on Hughes's behalf, it was said. The contract, for example, was for a book about "Senor Octavio," and a private letter between Irving and executives of McGraw-Hill identified the subject as Hughes.

On April 6, with the Hughes book contract two weeks old, Beverly Jane Loo, executive editor of McGraw-Hill, asked Ralph Graves, managing editor of Life, to lunch. She told him of the book, and they several stone statues of no artistic value, which Mrs. Irving periodically paints bright blues and bright reds.

Her real painting — her business as she calls it — is done in her second-story studio. As if on spur of the moment, she would grab up a handful of brushes, put on mechanic's overalls and flee up the steps to work on her abstracts. Twenty minutes later she would reappear, serve more coffee to the press and announce to the world that the family was preparing to flee to the Amazon.

Clifford Irving is her second husband and she is his fourth wife. Besides Ned, whom they call "Nedsky," they have another son, Barnaby, 2. They also have a dog, a black mongrel they picked up in a bar in downtown Ibiza.

opened negotiations as to Life's participation as syndicator.

ADHERING to the secrecy injunction, Graves told only his assistant managing editor, David Maness, said the Time Inc., syndication sales chief, Gideon de Margitay. A day or so later, he also told Hedley Donovan, editor in chief of Time Inc.

Frank McCulloch, chief of Time's New York bureau, the last reporter who is known to have talked to Hughes, was not made privy to the secret, nor was William Lambert, a noted investigative reporter who even then was negotiating to try to interview Hughes in his retreat on Paradise Island in the Bahamas. Both of these men learned of the project on Dec. 7.

A week after the Graves-Loo luncheon, McGraw-Hill gave Clifford Irving $100,000. He bought a $50,000 check at the Bankers Trust Company of New York. He said he personally handed the check to Howard Hughes in a parked car in Nassau, Bahamas, on April 23, when they met to begin taped interviews that he said were the backbone of the book.

THE CHECK was payable to "H. R. Hughes." Irving said, "That's the way Howard wanted all the checks to him made out." Irving and his Swiss-born wife were in Nassau until May 3.

On May 12, a woman showing a passport in the name of Helga R. Hughes appeared at the Swiss Credit Bank in Zurich. She opened account No. 320496 in the name H. R. Hughes and deposited 1,000 Swiss francs. She returned on May 13 with the Bankers Trust Check for $50,000 and deposited it, endorsing it "H. R. Hughes" in the presence of the cashier.

On May 27 and 28, Helga Hughes returned to the bank and took away $50,000 worth of Swiss francs in an airline travel bag.

According to the statement Irving made today, this woman was his wife.

Two weeks ago, as the investigation of the origins of the manuscript was beginning, Mrs. Irving was interviewed in their home in Ibiza, Spain, and said she thought it was "thrilling" that the world was paying attention to her husband's book.

BY LAST week when reporters asked her openly if she was Helga Hughes, Mrs. Irving said she was worried and resentful at the question. She and her husband both denied as they left Spain on Wednesday and as they arrived in New York that Edith Irving and Helga Hughes were one and the same.

Mrs. Irving, 36 years old, is 5 feet 6 inches tall, slender, and has long, dark blonde hair streaked with lighter blonde.

There are various descriptions of Helga Hughes. Early reports by Swiss banking sources described her as a blonde. A later report said that Helga Hughes was 31, slim and a brunette. A report in Time Magazine said that Helga Hughes was 32, slim, brunette, 5 feet one-half inch tall and weighed 100 pounds. Mrs. Irving weighs 115.

Finally the teller and a hostess of the bank that dealt with Helga Hughes agreed on a description embodied in a warrant for her arrest. The height was between 5 feet 3 and 5 feet 5, the age was about 35, the face and figure slim, the hair long and dark, worn loosely down to the shoulders.

THE SWISS police asked Mr. and Mrs. Irving to go to Zurich for questioning, but they refused and instead came to New York, where Irving is involved in the libel action growing out of his book "Fake."

Irving has said that his next series of meetings with Hughes occurred in Los Angeles, between June 9 and 18 with a single meeting on June 12 in

The embargo on U.S. shipping voted by Canadian Longshoremen and the Teamster action on the Mexican border came shortly before the scheduled resumption of talks between the ILWU and the Pacific Maritime Association in San Francisco Monday.

Palm Springs. In this period there are indications, discovered by persons checking his story, that the writer was in contact from Los Angeles with Miss Loo, executive editor at McGraw-Hill Book Company and Graves, the managing editor of Life.

On the overnight visit to Palm Springs, according to Irving and Suskind, his research assistant and partner, Hughes entered Irving's room while Suskind was there and the three talked briefly before Suskind left the room.

THIS IS the single important bit of corroboration that has been publicly disclosed since the book was announced. But executives at McGraw-Hill knew of this soon after it happened, Irving said in an interview.

On Aug. 28, Irving went to Pompano Beach, Fla., and the Beachcomber Motel, where he said he had the final series of taped interviews with Howard Hughes.

Records of the motel confirm that he and Suskind were there. No one has been found at the motel who says he saw Hughes. No one says he remembers a young man, such as Irving described, standing guard near their rooms with a cane. The guard was there because Suskind was transcribing the tapes of the interviews, Irving said.

On Sept. 11 Hughes and Irving met in the Beach Inn on Paradise Island, Bahamas, and Hughes gave the writer two sets of 950 pages of typed transcript, Irving said. One set bore editing in 'Hughes' hand, Irving said.

THE TWO worked out an addendum to their earlier contract, and Hughes wrote a note for Irving to show the publisher, the author said. It was on the front and back of a sheet of stationery with the hotel name on it, he said.

On Sept. 12 Irving went back to New York with the transcript, which was shown to executives of Life and McGraw-Hill at secret meetings in the Elysee Hotel.

The readers from Life were Graves, the managing editor, and Maness, the assistant managing editor. From McGraw-Hill they were Miss Loo, Leventhal, the book division vice president, and Stewart, the editor in chief who had worked on "Fake."

Meanwhile, Secretary of Labor J. D. Hodgson attacked Congress for dragging its feet on the President's bill to force settlement of strike.

"Little sense of urgency has been shown by Congress. We have run out of tools to work with and we need action by Congress — now," he told a news conference.

Hodgson said the strike threatens to halt the nation's economic recovery.

Longshore Union President Harry Bridges struck hard at President Nixon's legislative request for compulsory arbitration in the ILWU newspaper, The Dispatcher. The request has "united all sections of labor in opposition to this cockeyed proposal," he wrote in his column.

"I want to say right here and now ... that the workers came out on strike with a vote — an industrywide, secret referendum ballot — and they will return the same way," Bridges told longshoremen.

He said he does not think the President's program is going to work.

"President Nixon has done something — although we know that was not part of his purpose — that brings all labor together with one point of view," Bridges said.

He pointed out that Nixon's proposal named, in addition to the ILWU, all West Coast Teamsters Union locals and the ILWU's Hawaii local 142.

He said the PMA might take a stronger position in bargaining Monday as a result of the President's proposal.

In Sacramento Gov. Reagan warned that the strike is costing the state millions of dollars and asked the Legislature for a resolution urging Congress to end the walkout.

Reagan also scored California's Democratic Sen. Alan Cranston for reportedly saying strike legislation could be deferred for a month in Congress.

Leaded gas to be banned

NEW YORK (UPI) — William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, said Friday night that leaded gasoline will be phased out and completely abolished because of its deleterious effect on human health.

television program "Chronology," Ruckelshaus said that studies indicated there was enough of a health problem involved to warrant going ahead with phasing out leaded gasoline.

"There is considerable dispute over just what the impact on health is of lead in the atmosphere," Ruckelshaus said, "but we believe there is sufficient evidence of deleterious effects on human health that it ought to be regulated."

Ruckelshaus said that regulations would be issued under the Clean Air Act and that "very shortly after 1975 lead as an additive in gasoline will be phased out completely."

She also developed a habit of referring to Howard Hughes as "Uncle Howard," and once she said, "I could wait for him for two months with a gun."

Child's best therapist may be himself

By DENISE KUSEL
Staff Writer

The best therapist for a child may be the child himself, according to Paul W. Clement, director of clinical training at the Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena.

"Of all the people who treat psychologically disturbed children, the professional child psychiatrist is in the poorest position to be of major help," Clement told members of the California State Psychological Association who were attending the beginning of a four-day convention at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles.

The former Harbor General Hospital clinician said he favors teaching the child to treat himself using a system of tangible rewards to spur proper behavior.

He cited the example of a hyperactive student who was disruptive in class and had a difficult time sitting still long enough to do her work.

"We set up a five-minute egg timer," Clement said. "When the girl stayed in her seat for five minutes she earned a check mark."

"At the end of the day, she'd call and tell me how many check marks she had earned that day."

Clement said he believes self-therapy to be an alternative to drug therapy — chemotherapy — in the treatment of hyperactive youngsters.

"A child who can be slowed down by drugs can also be slowed down using this technique without drugs," he said.

In addition to self-help therapy, Clement also explained that using someone who is with the child a great deal of the time is a more effective method than relying on a professional therapist who usually only sees the child once a week.

"Parents are usually in a better position to change their own children's behavior than the professional therapist."

"As children grow older, the kid next door may have an even greater potential for bringing about therapeutic changes in their peers than their parents do," Clement said.

The psychologist said he begins his patients on a self-help and peer-administered therapy program as early as four years of age.

"Sometimes we use a game we call therapist for a day," Clement said. "The youngsters are divided into groups of four with one child playing the role of 'chief.'"

"The chief has a small wireless radio placed in his ear through which he receives instructions from the therapist who observes the group from behind a two-way mirror."

"The therapist participates in the therapy and coaches the group using the wireless radio," he added.

Some additional topics which are being presented at the convention include the adolescent girl in trouble, the police and the mental patient, bio-feedback, and a clinical study of parents of the battered child syndrome.

More than 1,500 psychologists from throughout the state are expected to attend meetings, which will last through Sunday.

L.B. OKs new policy on cost of replacing downtown mains

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

A policy change designed to help property owners in downtown Long Beach, particularly elderly people on limited incomes, to avoid some costs in the event replacement of water mains is necessary, has been approved by the Long Beach Water Commission.

Clyde N. Moore, general manager of the Water Department, explained Friday that when the downtown area was subdivided in the early days of Long Beach, the lots ran through the alleys, and the water mains were installed in the alleys.

Over the years, many of the lots have been divided into two or more parcels, isolating portions of the lots from the water main in the alley. In some cases, the customer's water line from the city meter to his house, passes under other buildings between him and the alley.

When such lines need repair or replacement, it usually means that the Water Department must bring the line along the street to the front of the customer's house.

Under the old department policy, the Water Department paid for only the first 50 feet of such extensions of the water main. In the downtown area, the isolated property often is more than 50 feet from the main, and the customer must pay the extra.

Under the new policy, the Water Department will pay the cost of up to 100 feet of main when it must be extended. In addition, the general manager may approve up to an additional 15 feet if that is necessary to avoid a driveway or trees.

Moore said that the added expense to the Water Department is minimal.

Most of the extensions in the downtown area exceed the 50-foot limit by only about five to 20 feet, and the rate on the two-inch line is $5 a foot. The administrative costs in handling the small payments for such customers offset the payments, he said.

In addition, Moore said, a majority of the people living in the older houses downtown are elderly, retired people on fixed incomes.

"These people generally have had nothing to do with division of the lot, and, in most cases, are not even aware that their private water line crosses other private or public property until a leak occurs," Moore said.

The "problem develops through no fault on the part of such residents, and the charge for extension of the water main, although comparatively small, works a hardship on them because of their limited income, Moore said.

"Because the rest of the city is virtually free from this problem, the present extension policy is applied to a relatively few of our customers and, therefore, is proving inequitable," Moore told the commis-

Library expands services in business, investor field

To meet the needs of the city's expanding financial community, the Long Beach Public Library has increased its services to businesses and investors, City Librarian Frances Henselman announced Friday.

Two major services just added, Mrs. Henselman said, are the monthly publications of Standard Rate and Data Service and Standard & Poor's stock reports.

"We have had hundreds of calls for these publications, and we are happy they are now available in our Main Library," said James Jackson, head of the science and technology department.

Standard Rate and Data Service is a monthly series of publications which gives advertising rates and physical requirements of U.S. and Canadian periodicals. It lists editors, advertising managers, key personnel, branch offices and circulation. It also includes advertising representatives, rates, mechanical requirements and issue and closing dates.

The Long Beach library subscribes to four of the SRDS publications: "Business Publications Rate and Data," "Consumer Magazine and Farm Publication Rates and Data," "Direct Mail Lists Rate and Data" and "Newspaper Rates and Data."

Jackson said Standard & Poor's stock reports include the New York and American stock exchanges, Over-the-Counter, and the "Encyclopedia of American Industry."

The Standard & Poor's services are being provided on a trial basis, Jackson said, and will be continued if the demand warrants such action.

Jackson also announced the Main Library now publishes each month a "Business Bookshelf," which is a list of and brief description of new publications in the local library which are of interest to the financial community.

As more financial institutions establish or expand their facilities in Long Beach, Mrs. Henselman said, the Public Library will endeavor to increase its services to such businesses and individuals.

L.B. nurse pleads innocent to grand-theft charges

A 30-year-old Long Beach nurse Friday pleaded innocent to charges of taking $16,500 from nursing-home operators, by promising them medical patients for their facilities.

Madeline Akoboff of 1925 Lane Ave. appeared before Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Charles Older on six counts of grand theft and three of writing checks with insufficient funds.

Pretrial motions were scheduled Feb. 28 and trial set March 31 in Department 104.

She is charged with taking the money from three nursing-home operators by "guaranteeing" them patients.

She is also accused of representing herself as a state employee in order to take $8,375 from nursing homes.

Adult School to begin new vocational classes

New career-skill classes for adults begin Monday at the Long Beach School for Adults Evening High School, which conducts vocational courses from 7 to 10 p.m. at Wilson High School.

A nine-week course to prepare people to take civil service examinations will be taught Wednesday nights by Ralph Nees, Civil Service representative from the Long Beach Post Office.

Professional Secretary Review, a full-semester course for secretaries interested in improving their skills, meets Monday and Wednesday evenings. Professional certified secretaries Neva Blust and Bette Zabish will teach the course.

Beginning and advanced bookkeeping classes will be taught Tuesday and Thursday nights by Kenneth Keenan.

Vocational Photography, a course for amateur lensmen who wish to become commercial photographers, will be taught Wednesday nights by Les Brown.

The School for Adults also offers classes in furniture repair and refinishing, typing, stenograph, office procedures and other subjects.

Persons who are more than 18 years old may register at Wilson High School during the first class meetings.

Cop held in wife's killing loses custody of his sons

By VINT MADER
Staff Writer

Long Beach Superior Court Judge Frank C. Charvat Friday awarded guardianship of the young sons of a Los Angeles policeman accused of slaying his wife to Mrs. Elvira "Vera" Robles, 23, sister of the boys' mother.

Judge Charvat commended the "suitable and desirable homes" of both families, Mrs. Robles and her husband Jaime, of 644 E. 220th St., Carson, and counter-petitioner, Alfonso Pacheco and his wife, Georgiana, brother and sister-in-law of the children's father.

Charvat noted in his decision that testimony by Dr. Ralph Stewart, a clinical psychologist, showed Manuel Pacheco Jr., 6, "is making satisfactory recovery from the shock he sustained" and ruled against a change in his placement.

However, Charvat said a change in the guardianship of the children may be considered at a later time.

Officer Manuel Pacheco, 24, is free on $5,000 bond with his trial scheduled Monday before Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Sherman Smith on charges of murder and attempted murder in the shooting of his wife, Nov. 2 in her home at 2739 E. 218th St., Dominguez, and wounding of a man who was with her.

Charvat ordered attorneys for the two families "to attempt to reach a stipulation" for visiting rights of the father with Manuel Jr. and Raul, 3.

If they fail to file a written agreement, the judge said he will fix visitation rights. Meanwhile he left in force a visiting schedule set by Long Beach Judge Charles C. Stratton when he awarded Mrs. Robles, 23, temporary pretrial guardianship.

Attorney Juan A. Rostagno, filed with the court Friday declarations in which Georgiana Pacheco claims statements Manuel Jr. made about witnessing events of the night of the shooting were untrue.

She said "matters were told to him by members of the Robles family, the reason being to poison the mind of this little boy against his father and other members of his family."

An accompanying affidavit of Kenneth W. Gale, San Pedro attorney who is defending the 1963 police Medal of Valor winner on the murder charges, said there has been no report of either child observing the events on the morning of Nov. 2.

Charvat reminded Rostagno in a letter filed with the decision that such depositions cannot be trial evidence, but used only to impeach a witness. They might be used to support a motion opposing his order, Charvat said.

When Charvat closed the Wednesday hearing with a 15-minute interview of the 6-year-old in his chambers, he offered to include a shorthand reporter in the session, but neither attorney requested one.

Del Guercio is former district director and assistant commissioner of the U.S. Justice Department's Immigration and Naturalization Service. Before retiring, Del Guercio was employed at the Justice Department for 36 years.

Mother's struggle with heart attack Near-tragedy for family

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

She was 34 years old and seven months pregnant when it began.

A faint feeling. Nausea. Extreme weakness. A severe ache in her left arm. Muguetta M. McNamee knew what was happening, for she once had been employed by a physician.

Heart attack!

Her story was related before 700 persons Friday in the Grand Salon of the Queen Mary at the 1972 Heart Fund kickoff luncheon sponsored by the Long Beach Heart Association.

Her experience was cited as an example of how tragedy can strike a family in its prime.

"I managed to get to the bedroom and lie down, but it (the pain) was getting worse by then," Mrs. McNamee was to relate later.

"I lost consciousness for a few minutes and when I came to, I called my little girl (Cindy, then 3) and asked her to try to help me get up and get to the phone. It was kind of hard for her to understand."

"So I got on all fours and I crawled to the room where the phone was and called my husband."

FROM A MEDICAL report, read to Heart Association volunteers by G. B. Gordon, keynote speaker for the Heart Fund and vice president of Pacific Christian College:

"She was taken to a nearby hospital where a physician examined her and because she happened to be seven months pregnant, the physician felt that she was probably having an anxiety attack and gave her an injection of a tranquilizer and advised her to consult her obstetrician for follow-up care. Muguetta notified her obstetrician who instructed that she be transferred immediately to the emergency room of Memorial Hospital in Long Beach."

"At Memorial, Muguetta arrived in severe shock with very low blood pressure. She was given emergency treatment — then admitted to the intensive medical care unit where her condition continued to be extremely critical for the next four days."

MRS. MCNAMEE recalls: "I kept asking if the baby would be all right — that was my main concern — and I wanted to go home. They told me that I had had a coronary and would have to stay in the hospital five or six weeks — that everything would be all right and the baby was all right."

From the medical report: "She suffered a very serious complication by developing a severe pneumonia in both lungs. She required a respirator with continuous oxygen. After a critical period of eight days, the pneumonia began to clear."

Doctors then faced an important decision. Her heart specialist and two obstetricians discussed whether to use heparin, and anticoagulating medication which hopefully would prevent further complications stemming from her heart disorder.

The medical report continues:

"It is known that this anticoagulant could be detrimental to the baby that Muguetta was carrying and in fact could even be fatal to the baby. After considerable study and discussion, the three physicians decided it would be of utmost importance to proceed with anticoagulation in order to prevent further serious complications which could be fatal to both the mother and the baby."

Slowly, she regained strength, and eventually was discharged from the hospital. She re-entered the hospital a few weeks later for induction of labor.

At 1:30 in the morning, she was delivered of a healthy girl. Her name: Elizabeth.

GOOD NEWS for Muguetta, her husband James, and children Cindy, now 9, and Robert, now 8.

But her battle with heart disease was far from over. Tests at Memorial Hospital, performed later, showed there was life-threatening blood deficit to the heart muscle because of narrowed coronary arteries, those that nourish the heart muscle itself.

She, like her father, had atherosclerosis, a form of arteriosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries. And her father had died of a coronary (heart attack) when he was only 46 years old.

Muguetta McNamee's own recollections continue: "I think I was a little nervous at the thought of having heart surgery... but for my own sake, my cardiologist advised me to have surgery. Not only for my own sake, but because my children would need me."

Del Guercio is former district director and assistant commissioner of the U.S. Justice Department's Immigration and Naturalization Service. Before retiring, Del Guercio was employed at the Justice Department for 36 years.

FIRST the surgeons abraded the inner layer of the pericardium, the membrane surrounding the heart.

Then they swung the left internal mammary artery from its customary position so that the cut end could be inserted directly into a small tunnel created surgically in the heart muscle itself.

Finally, the surgical area was wrapped with a graft of omentum, fatty tissue, taken from the abdomen, rich in blood vessels.

Muguetta recalls: "I woke up in the intensive surgical care unit and I had tubes, equipment and nurses all around me. I couldn't realize right away what had happened and I started to try to move."

"Then I realized it's over. I'd had the heart surgery and I'm still alive. I've made it."

Indeed she had. She has had treadmill heart stress

SURVIVED HEART DEFECT

Mrs. Muguetta M. McNamee of La Palma suffered a serious heart attack five years ago and underwent corrective surgery. She can now enjoy a normal life with her family. She told her story to a Heart Fund kickoff luncheon sponsored by the Long Beach Heart Association.

Panel pushes new marinas

A committee of the Los Angeles City Council asked the city's Harbor Commission Friday to use part of the harbor for recreational needs and act on plans for new small craft marinas.

The meeting was attended by about 100 boating enthusiasts, some of whom complained boating facilities were being eliminated in the harbor, even though — they said — marinas show a better revenue return on investments than commercial facilities.

The council's committee on industry and transportation made the promarina recommendation at the end of a 2½-hour meeting.

City Council President John Gibson, who attended the meeting, accused harbor commissioners of "dragging their feet" in planning small-craft facilities.

Fred Crawford, assistant general manager of the Harbor Department, said work on the Fish Harbor marina would begin soon because problems posed by ecology studies and other requirements had been solved.

Police, students set for 'rap' sessions

A rap session between Gahr High School students and Lakewood sheriffs deputies will be conducted Tuesday at 7 p.m. in room 401 at Gahr High School, 11111 E. Artesia Blvd., Cerritos.

The session is sponsored by the newly organized Law Enforcement Cooperation Committee, a citizens' advisory group.

"Our goal is to have Cerritos teen-ager talk to sheriffs deputies in a relaxed atmosphere and to open lines of communication between the two groups," said Barbara Ryal, a committee official.

TV, camera taken

A portable TV set, a movie camera and a transistor radio were stolen from the home of James F. Farah, of 3609 Studebaker Road, by prowlers who pried open a kitchen door to enter, police said Friday.

FT. MacARTHUR COMMAND CHANGE

Col. Gerald H. Shea, left, turned over the colors Friday at Ft. MacArthur to his former deputy, Col. Robert E. Boughn. Lt. Gen. Alexander D. Surles Jr., 6th Army commander from the Presidio of San Francisco, presented retiring Col. Shea with an oak leaf cluster to the Legion of Merit. Before coming to the fort last August, Col. Boughn was on the staff of the Army Air Defense Command at Ent Air Force Base, Colorado Springs.

Bellflower 4th graders to be checked for heart ills

By RALPH McCLURG
Staff Writer

A series of clinics to check all children in the fourth grade for possible hidden heart defects has been scheduled in Bellflower schools by the Southern Division of the Los Angeles County Heart Association.

A small machine known as the Phonocardiogram computer will be used to check 20 children per hour for abnormal heart sounds — sounds that are so quiet they sometimes escape detection.

The heart defects in childhood are usually the result either of rheumatic fever, which leaves scars in the heart, or birth defects.

Hearts so afflicted may survive a normal pace, association officials noted, but have little capacity to meet sudden and unusual demands. Children with such defects often show no outward sign of illness until infection or physical stress puts the heart under pressure. There may be no warning until they are young adults and suddenly develop heart trouble.

School officials said notices will be sent to the parents of the children involved for permission to test their child's heart sounds. The youngsters will see slides showing them how the machine works.

The clinics will be held at Los Flores School, Monday Feb. 7; Woodrow Wilson, Tuesday, Feb. 8; Jefferson School Feb. 9; Ramona, Feb. 10; Thompson, Feb. 14; Rogers and Lincoln Schools, Feb. 15; Baxter and Ross Schools, Feb. 17; and Woodruff School, Feb. 18.

Reagan names three to Superior Court posts

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Reagan Friday announced three judicial appointments involving Long Beach-area courts.

He appointed Municipal Court Judge Robert C. Nye of Los Angeles to the Superior Court to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Beach Vasey, for many years a Superior Court judge in Long Beach.

He also named West Orange County Municipal Court Judge Lloyd E. Blampied Jr. to the Superior Court, succeeding the retired Howard Cameron, and elevated Downey Municipal Court Judge William E. McGinley to a Superior Court seat formerly held by H. Burton Noble, who retired.

Asked by Gordon if she wished to say something to the 700 persons out front, Elizabeth turned the color of her pink hair ribbon and said firmly:

"No."

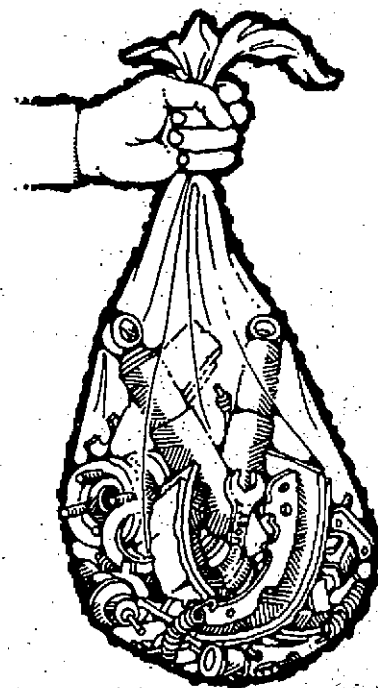

Judge Nye, 51, was for three years a Superior Court commissioner and formerly was a prosecutor in the Los Angeles City Attorney's office. He lives in Los Angeles.

Judge Blampied, 48, lives with his family in Newport Beach and practiced law in the Long Beach area for 18 years before being appointed to the bench in 1969.

Judge McGinley, 45, was with the district attorney's office for 15 years before being appointed to the bench in 1969. He lives with his family in La Mirada.

The three men, all Republicans will receive salaries of $35,000 per year.

You never leave Big Brake with a bad taste in your mouth

We give you something special to take away with you — all your old, worn out parts. Why? Because we know, and you know, that nobody trusts anybody in the car repair business. Sad, but true.

We have nothing to hide.

So we put all your worn parts in a sack for you. That way your wife can take them to an office of the Highway Patrol or any Official.

Brake Inspection Station and satisfy herself (and you, perhaps) that what we did, really needed doing. We call it our "nothing-to-hide" sack. (If you take away your old brake shoes, we have to charge a $2 deposit, like on pop bottles. You get your $2 back when we get the shoes back.)

What makes us so confident? Because we are experts. When it comes to brake repair, we are the Mozart of discs and drums. And we got that way by doing more — more than 25,000 jobs every year.

No surprises.

We'd like to show you just how expert we are. In fact, if you have the time, we invite you to stick around and watch us work. Also, that way there won't be any surprises, no quick phone calls saying we have to put in a new master cylinder. Or that your imported baby needs a new pair of shoes.

Is it inevitable that a brake job always ends up costing more than you expected? Not inevitable, but it's fairly common. And with good reason.

Don't blame the system.

Blame your right foot. It shouldn't come as a surprise to you that your brakes, like most other things in life, aren't always what they seem to be.

Little unexpected things can go wrong. Sometimes your brakes squeak, or they pull, or the pedal feels soft. If your brakes don't stop quickly, that's a sure sign something is amiss.

But what? Since it's brake lining that makes you stop, it's logical to think the lining is shot. Maybe so, maybe not.

Actually, your brakes are a complete system — linings, drums, springs, pistons, valves, seals. All these work together to stop you when you shove your foot down on the pedal.

Free inspection.

When you push the pedal and nothing happens, or something goofy happens, we hope you'll come to us. There is no charge for inspection and no obligation.

You'll be surprised at how thorough our free inspection is. We look at the complete brake system and even road test your car.

If we find something wrong, we tell you. If you tell us to fix it, then, and only then, do we go to work.

One of the reasons we ask you to stick around is so you can see that when we pull the drums we aren't trying to pull a fast one on you. We'd much rather have you peering over our shoulder than glaring at us over the bill.

By the way, it's a good rule for you to know that if your car is about two years old, chances are 50/50 you need new brake linings right now.

And, since most cars are over two years old, let's talk about linings.

The $19.00 lining.

This is a quality bonded lining as good as (or better than) most manufacturers put on their new cars. Our $19.00 lining will take care of average driving needs, wears well, has good fade resistance and is adequate for most cars. You get new ones free if anything goes wrong up to 20,000 miles.

The $34.00 lining.

This is the best. Here we use the premium Bendix riveted lining that holds up even under toughest driving conditions like we have here in Southern California.

If you do lots of freeway or stop-and-go driving, or if you plan to keep your car for more than 20,000 miles, take the $34.00 lining. In the long run, it saves you money. We guarantee this lining for 40,000 miles.

Incidentally, we "are grind" your new linings at no charge for the best fit with your drums. We do all we can to make you happy so you'll talk nice about us behind our backs.

"True your drums, Sir?"

Don't get the idea that you can just slip on new linings. Linings will last much longer if you let us do three important things:

(1) "Machine" the drums to get rid of rough spots and scratches.

(2) "True" the drums so the linings will make perfect contact and wear evenly.

(3) Rebuild the wheel cylinders so they won't leak fluid all over the new lining and ruin it.

We offer a special package price to take care of all this.

Packages save you $$. Look at our price list. You can buy our services one at a time or in a package. Get the package. It saves you money, time and worry.

Our best policy.

Honesty, of course. When you come to our shop you'll see all prices written on the walls — sort of like fiscal graffiti. In case you don't get it in this week, here's a step-by-step breakdown of what our brake charges buy you.

Truck driver's secret:
One of the most neglected parts of a brake system are the return springs. These are what push your pedal back and also keep your linings off the brake drum when your foot is off the pedal.

Truck drivers will tell you that weak springs are the cause of big trouble in their rigs — pulling, diving, excessive wear and drum scoring.

If brake springs are worn, we charge you $2.25 per wheel to put on new ones. And $2.25 per wheel to replace front-wheel grease-retainer seals that can wear out and cause damage to the new linings.

What about disc brakes?

Thought you'd never ask. No matter where your car was made — Detroit or Düsseldorf — we are disc brake specialists. And we offer disc brake service second to none.

Big Brake loves credit cards.

Next to cash, that is. However you choose to pay us — BankAmericard, Master Charge, American Express, whatever — we offer easy credit to help you keep your car safe for family driving.

You can't beat our drums.

If your brakes have been severely damaged by overheating, or if you let your linings wear down to the brake shoe so there was metal-to-metal contact, then you may need to replace the brake drum itself.

We'll try hard to rework your drums for you on our lathes, but taking too much metal off a drum weakens it and doesn't leave enough to safely absorb and dissipate heat.

If our micrometers show your drums are dangerously shy of metal, then you may have to buy new ones. A new drum can run you around $25, depending on what kind of car you drive.

Once in a blue moon or maybe longer, you may need to replace the master cylinder or power assist unit. This too can increase your end cost. But we'll tell you if you need it. And if you do, remember the old parts go in our "nothing-to-hide" sack.

TV networks' movies for theaters cut back

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — Four years ago, CBS and ABC launched ambitious programs to produce feature movies for theaters. Today both networks have drastically curtailed their film subsidiaries and are evaluating future activities.

Recently Leonard H. Goldenson, president of American Broadcasting Co., admitted the curtailment of ABC Pictures and said future film proposals "are being carefully reviewed." Martin Baum, who headed the feature operation, is leaving the company Tuesday to produce independently.

CBS HAS announced that it is taking "a hard look at our Cinema Center Films operation, particularly with reference to economics and future projects." Several executives have left Cinema Center, but operations continue at the network's venture into theater movies.

"CBS couldn't have picked a worse time to enter the field," declared Gordon L. Stulberg, who headed Cinema Center and is now president of 20th Century-Fox.

"The operation started just at the time that top stars started getting a million dollars a picture and when some directors were going wild and doubling their pictures' budgets. We have to pay huge prices to get stars like Jack Lemmon, John Wayne, Lee Marvin and Steve McQueen. We needed names like those to enter the film market in an important way."

"I think we succeeded. Variety said Cinema Center was the sixth money-maker in 1970, ahead of two of the major companies. That proved we captured a large percentage of the market."

Stulberg pointed to the costs vs. grosses of some of Cinema Center's big winners: "Little Big Man," $9 million-$23 million; "Big Jake," $4.4 million-$12 million; "A Man Called Horse," $4.4 million-$12 million; "The Reivers," $5.5 million-$2 million.

Of course, there were losers, too, and Wall Street sources have estimated a more than $10 million loss for Cinema Center in 1971. But Stulberg observed that CBS now has an inventory of 30 prestigious films which have not yet been tapped for reissue or sale to television.

In the same vein, Martin Baum admitted that the "timing was bad" for the ABC movie operation, "but I felt that our mistakes were behind us."

Mistakes included "The Last Valley," "Suppose They Gave a War and Nobody Came," "Too Late the Hero" and "The Gristle Gang." But Baum pointed to the costs vs. grosses of these winners: "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" $3.8 million-$8 million; "Charley," $1.2 million-$8 million; "Lovers and Other Strangers," $2.3 million-$9 million; "For Love of Ivy," $2.2 million-$7 million.

BAUM ADDED: "I'm leaving ABC with four pictures that have a great potential: 'Kotch,' which cost $1.5 million and will make an estimated $6.5 million; 'Straw Dogs,' which cost $2.3 and may make between $18 million and $19 million; plus 'Cabaret' and 'Junior Bonner,' starring Steve McQueen."

Still unreleased from Cinema Center: "The War Between Men and Women" Jack Lemmon; "Snoopy Comes Home"; "Prime Cuts" Lee Marvin; "The Revengers" William Holden.

The success or failure of these films may well determine whether CBS and ABC will continue in the theatrical movie business. NBC has not taken the plunge, except to finance Bob Hope features.

Stulberg's successor at Cinema Center, Robert L. Rosen, sounded a hopeful note: "I think the future looks good. We've learned a great deal in four years. If there is a motion picture business out there, an operation like ours is in the best situation to succeed."

"With no overhead and no distribution company to feed, we don't have to make 10 features a year. We can afford to sit back and evaluate the market, and plan accordingly."

As a guide to moviegoers this newspaper lists capsule contents of major motion pictures playing the Long Beach area. Most classifications represent the judgment of the Film

I'D RATHER BE LIGHT

By EARL WILSON

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: A man grumbled that his wife's a fanatic about germs: "She's the only person I know who boils martinis."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: The formula for a successful vacation is to take along half the clothes you think you'll need, and twice the money you've saved.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "A writer's best friend is his wastepaper basket. His worst enemy is his couch." —Thornton Wilder.

EARL'S PEARLS: Keith Charles of "Applause," asked to describe his ideal woman, said: "She should be considerate and understanding, and a beautiful heiress."

'CBS Playhouse 90' to debut with 'Look Homeward, Angel'

By GEORGE ERES
TV-Radio Editor

"CBS Playhouse 90" makes its debut this season on Feb. 25 with "Look Homeward, Angel," an adaptation of the Pulitzer Prize-winning play based on Thomas Wolfe's novel.

Ketti Frings, who authored the Broadway play awarded the Pulitzer Prize for drama and the N.Y. Drama Critics Circle Award in 1957, wrote the TV adaptation.

The 90-minute special will star Geraldine Page, E. G. Marshall and Timothy Bottoms.

"JUVENILE JURY" and "Let's Make a Deal" trade time slots tonight on Ch. 7. "Jury" moves to 7 p.m.; "Deal" airs at 7:30 p.m. "Deal" also continues at 1:30 p.m. weekdays on Ch. 7.

SANDY DUNCAN, whose "Funny Face" was discontinued, after being established as a hit in its premiere season, because of surgery to remove a tumor lodged behind her eye, will make her first primetime guest appearance on "The Flip Wilson Show" Feb. 10.

Miss Duncan, who will be back in her series next season, says the operation which has left her blinded — possibly temporarily — in one eye, hasn't had too much of an effect on her.

"I lost a bit of depth perception. I pour a lot of sugar on the table or I open doors three inches away from the knobs — all the things that people expect me to do, anyway."

The one thing that is different about her is that she now wears a wig.

"I'm bald-headed. They had to cut my hair, you know, to do the surgery. My hair was short before, but now it's ridiculous! I look like I ought to be in the Army or something. Even soldiers can wear their hair longer than mine."

It's no problem with the wig, she says. "It's so easy to put them on and off that I'm not going to let my hair grow back. Wait a minute, uh, change that. I might not let my hair grow back, but then again I might change my mind tomorrow. You see the outside of my head looks different, but the inside is the same kooky mess."

THE 25th Anniversary of "The Juilliard String Quartet" will be aired on "Camera Three," 9 a.m., Ch. 2, Sunday.

String music and reflections on outstanding performance of the quartet founded by composer William Schuman when he became head of the Juilliard School of Music in New York City, will be featured.

RADIO NOTE: The Metropolitan Opera Broadcast at 11 a.m. today on KFAC (1130 AM; 92.3 FM) is Debussy's "Pelleas et Melisande."

Present members of the quartet are Robert Mann and Earl Carlyss, violins; Samuel Rhodes, viola, and Claus Adam, cello. They will perform works by Haydn, Bartok, Stravinsky and Beethoven.

Last-second basket saves 49ers

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

SAN JOSE — For 30 minutes, 58 seconds Friday night, Cal State Long Beach's Pacific Coast Athletic Assn. win streak was at an end.

But with two seconds remaining, all-America Ed Ratleff dropped in two free throws to give the 49ers their 25th successive PCAA triumph, 73-72, over San Jose State.

"I wasn't counting on that, I wasn't counting on that at all," San Jose coach Ivan Guevara said afterward, trying to shake himself from a combined state of disappointment and disbelief.

"The guy was 30 feet from the basket, with his back to it, two seconds left and we foul him. I couldn't believe it. We had it in the bag and we let it get away."

San Jose, spurred on by a record, turnaway crowd of 2,231, appeared to have its third consecutive upset in hand until Ratleff got his chance to redeem the 49ers (16-1).

Ratleff got his chance after sophomore forward

Don Orndorff had put the Spartans ahead, 72-71, with 14 seconds to play.

San Jose worked the ball for 1:18 to get Orndorff's basket after Nate Stephens had given Cal State its only lead of the second half with a lay-in at 1:32.

The Spartans brought the ball down and deliberately worked around the perimeter of the 49er zone until 18 seconds remained.

Then guard Don Strong drove the lane. When the 49ers converged on him, he dropped a pass to Orndorff for the uncontested lay-in.

The 49ers called time with 12 seconds left. After conferring with coach Jerry Tarkanian, they had to inbound the ball from under their own basket.

Ratleff took the ball from Tom Motley and tried to work upcourt against the tough defense of Strong. Ratleff was still 30 feet from the basket with two seconds remaining and appeared to have no chance of getting a shot.

Johnnie Skinner tried to make sure, however, and grabbed Ratleff on the arm while trying for a blindside steal. Ratleff tumbled to the court to emphasize the contact and got the call.

San Jose called time out to give Ratleff time to think about what he had to do, and when the 6-foot-6 junior went to the line, every Spartan fan in the tiny gym was screaming.

Ratleff was equal to the task, dropping both shots in the middle of the basket.

The foul was an unkind fate for Skinner.

The 6-foot junior from Philadelphia, the Spartans' leading scorer as a sophomore, has had trouble adjusting to Guevara's style of play and has been used as a reserve.

It was in that role Friday night that Skinner hit 10 of his first 12 shots after being inserted into the game.

"It must be a jinx," Guevara said, noting that his only other confrontation with Tarkanian and Long Beach also was a one-point loss.

"It was exactly the same kind of game," Guevara said, recalling Cal State's 61-60 win over his Whittier team two years ago. "Both times we've beaten them in field goals, and lost at the foul line."

San Jose had seven more field goals than the 49ers, but five of that margin came on goattending calls by officials and a sixth was an inadvertent tip-in by Chuck Terry that went to the Spartans.

AWARD-WINNER MISSES CUT

Lee Trevino, shown here putting during Andy Williams-San Diego Open golf tournament, is winner of 22nd Hickok Belt as Professional Athlete of the Year, it was announced Friday.

TREVINO NABS HICKOK BELT

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — Lee Trevino, the happy-go-lucky golfer, is the 22nd winner of the annual Hickok Belt as Professional Athlete of the Year, it was announced Friday.

Trevino, 32, who won $231,200 in 1971, scored an easy victory in the poll of the nation's sports writers, getting 70 first place votes and a total of 302 points to outdistance Roberto Clemente of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who had 25 first place nominations, and a total of 162 points, and the third place finisher, heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, who had 26 top votes but only 160 points.

In a span of four weeks, Trevino captured the U.S., British and Canadian Open tournaments.

Japanese golfer shares leadership in San Diego Open

By DOUG IVES

SAN DIEGO — They played musical chairs for the lead in the $150,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open here Friday and wound up with a mixed bag of players from three countries in the challenging positions.

Three share the lead at 137, 7-under-par. They are Takashi Murakami of Japan, Bruce Crampton of Australia and Hale Irwin of Colorado, USA. One shot back are Mexican-American Homero Blancas and another Coloradan, Dale Douglass.

No less than nine players held the lead at one point during the frantic day at Torrey Pines, an ocean course of 6,808 yards that was virtually free of the tricky winds that plagued golfers on Thursday.

Twenty-one players are within four strokes of first place, and that kind of traffic jam is unusual on the PGA tour. To say the title is wide open is an understatement.

Gene Littler, the first-round leader at 66, lost his putting stroke and had to settle for a 73, leaving him at 139 along with Paul Harney (71) and Labron Harris (68).

Five more stand at 140, including big Bob Murphy, and another eight are bracketed at 141, including Jack Nicklaus, who rebounded from a 73 to shoot a 68 Friday.

Best round of the day was a 31-34 65 by Frank Beard, but with a 77 in the first round he is among eight players at 142. The 31 tied the front nine course record.

It took 146 to make the cut, and just in at that figure were Lee Trevino and Dave Stockton. The notable who failed included Bob Lunn (147) and Jerry Heard (152).

Ironically, Crampton was worried about making the cut after three holes. He had a bogey, a par and then saved a par. He was struggling and said he didn't feel confident.

Crampton was still not on the leader board when he turned in 36. But then came some of the best shotmaking and putting

GIRL CAGER SCORES 100

CLARENDON, Tex. (UPI) — Dianne Campbell, a 5-6 senior forward, scored 100 points Friday night to lead Claude High School to a 106-10 victory over Clarendon High School in a girls basketball game. Miss Campbell hit primarily on jump shots from at least 12 feet out, and left the game with three minutes remaining.

UCLA rips Loyola (Ill.); Irish next

CHICAGO (Special) — If it's any consolation, Chicago Loyola can say it faced the best when the current basketball season finally concludes.

George Ireland's Ramblers have now battled the nation's top three powers in the past two weeks — and came away losers on each occasion.

Friday they were simply outclassed by No. 1-ranked UCLA, 82-64. Last week they lost to Marquette's second-rated Warriors, 79-60, and Cal State Long Beach's third-ranked 49ers, 79-68.

The game was played one year to the day after UCLA's last loss, an 89-82 setback to Notre Dame. Since then the Bruins have won 23 in a row, including their fifth consecutive NCAA championship.

They play Notre Dame today at South Bend, Ind. — the site of the defeat. The Irish, who lost, 114-56, at UCLA earlier this season, were whipped by Illinois, 81-59, Friday in the nightcap of the Chicago Stadium doubleheader.

The Bruins breezed to their 15th victory of the season without defeat, moving to a 22-11 lead 10 minutes into the game. Paced by Bill Walton and Henry Bibby, UCLA extended its lead to 42-26 at the half.

After Greg Lee scored the opening second-half basket, Bibby added three successive scores to make it 50-28 in favor of UCLA and put Loyola out of contention.

Millikan rally pummels Poly

By KEN PIVERNETZ
Staff Writer

Seemingly a beaten team, Millikan High took the momentum away from Poly and went on to beat the Jackrabbits, 54-49, Friday night at Long Beach City College.

If the Rams, now 5-0 in Moore League competition, go on to win the championship, the impetus may have come from Friday's performance.

Trailing 41-29 at 2:30 of the third period, the Rams outscored Poly 14-2 in the next four minutes to turn the game around.

Millikan reeled off eight quick points in succession to close out the third period on three-point plays by Bob Cromer and Dan Wiley with two free throws sandwiched in between by Del Ritchie.

By then, the season's largest prep turnout of 3,200 could see the game slipping out of Poly's grasp.

The Jackrabbits turned the ball over three times without getting off a shot in the early stages of the final period to enable Millikan to draw even at 43-43 when Cromer slipped in a basket at 6:12.

The Jackrabbits didn't die quietly, regaining the lead at 45-44 and again at 47-46 before two costly offensive foul calls and some individual heroics by the Rams' Wiley put the game out of reach.

Wiley scored six points in a row at the same time Millikan went to a man-to-man defense after staying basically with a 2-3 zone most of the game.

"We had to do something to get some offensive momentum going," commented winning coach Bill Odell. "Poly's pressure defense was pulling us out of our offensive patterns. We were letting them take the game away from us."

Until they got careless in the late going, the Hares did a good job passing around Millikan's zone and hitting the open man. As soon as the tempo of the game changed, so did Poly's effectiveness.

The Hares might have had an even bigger lead to work with at times in the third period except for accurate shooting by the Rams' Steve Sincock.

The 6-6 junior wound up with 17 points, one more than Wiley. He outscored his counterpart, Dave Hillman, by five.

From 'Red Harry' to labor statesman

This strike may be Bridges' last

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Win or lose, the current dock strike probably is the last for Harry Bridges, the hawk-nosed former Australian longshoreman.

Bridges is 70, still wiry and apparently in good health. He has been president of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union since he pulled the West Coast dockers out of the AFL in 1937.

When he finishes leading this effort to close down the ports, Bridges can get back to his job as San Francisco port commissioner, seeking to bring more business to the docks.

A registered Republican, he may decide to endorse President Nixon for reelection on the basis of Nixon's friendly moves toward Red China. Bridges was thrown in jail during the Korean war, mainly for being friendly toward Red China.

THE PRESENT strike is a crucial test for the man who was born Alfred Renton Bridges, son of a Melbourne realtor, until his rough-hewn buddies on the docks began calling him

HARRY BRIDGES
Final Act?

"Harry" back in the 30s. Unless the ILWU "wins" the strike, other leaders of the 70,000-member union are going to blame Bridges for being too much of a statesman and not enough of a fighter.

That would be an ironic touch to a career which began in New Orleans in 1920 when the barkentine Ysobel docked and the 19-year-old Australian came ashore in the United States.

Within a year, he had been jailed for labor organizing activities. Moving to San Francisco, he was leading a maritime strike in 1934, when, on "bloody Thursday," two strikers were killed and dozens injured by police. Bridges sparked the entire labor movement in a general strike, which paralyzed San Francisco for three days.

Between a series of long and bitter dock strikes in the 30s and 40s, Bridges organized fishermen, warehousemen, cannery workers, and Hawaii's sugar and pineapple plantations. He failed in his goal of forming one big maritime union that would include ship crews as well as dockworkers.

Much of the American public in the Midwest and East first heard about the "fiery" Harry Bridges after World War II when he was targeted as a probable Communist. The government tried several times to deport him, but he became a U.S. citizen in 1945, denying that he was a Communist.

A few years later he was tried in federal court on charges that his denial of membership in the Communist Party was perjury. Among witnesses during the 81-day trial was his first wife, who said he hid a party membership card under the linoleum in their home.

IN 1950, Bridges threatened to interfere with Korean war shipping because he considered the conflict a U.S. blunder. A federal judge, describing him then as "a menace to the internal welfare of the United States," revoked his bail and he was confined in jail for 20 days until his attorneys won his release.

Two years later, the U.S. Supreme Court reversed his perjury conviction. The court did not rule on whether he was a Communist but declared the government waited too long to prosecute him. The final chapter in his 16-year battle with the government was the dismissal in 1955 of another civil suit for his deportation.

Some of his union members were offended by Bridges' unpatriotic view of the Korean war. Others became disgruntled in 1960 when he negotiated an historic automation contract with the shipowners, permitting introduction of containers and other labor-saving systems.

The contract brought a decade of peace to the Pacific Coast waterfronts. It turned out well for the employers, and also for the longshoremen who lost their jobs but were paid anyway.

But last year, with a renewal at hand, containerization was expanding rapidly. Longshoremen were worried about losing more jobs. Some union leaders feared that Bridges might not be tough enough with employers.

The result was not only the first dock strike on the West Coast in a decade, but one of record length, which dragged on for more than three months interrupted temporarily by a Taft-Hartley back to work order but resumed after the order expired.

That is where Harry Bridges stands now. A man of few words, he refuses requests for interviews and intends to show what he is by doing what he does.

ABA proposes $2,000 auto accident payments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A modified form of "no-fault" insurance for victims of automobile accidents was proposed today by a special committee of the American Bar Association.

An injured driver or passenger would receive up to $2,000 to cover his medical benefits and loss of wages, regardless of who was at fault in the accident.

The payment would be made by his insurance company, without any legal action. All states, by law, would require insurance companies to include this "no-fault" provision in auto policies.

THE COMMITTEE, headed by Judge John T. Reardon of Quincy, Ill., said it recommended $2,000 as the cutoff for automatic payments since it would cover losses sustained by nearly 95 per cent of traffic accident victims. However, the states could pick a higher figure.

The Special Committee on Auto Insurance Legislation was set up by the ABA last May. Its recommendations will be presented to the ABA's policy-making House of Delegates at a meeting in New Orleans next month. Formal action by the House would come next summer.

Auto insurance has been under consideration by the ABA since 1965, when two law professors, Robert E. Keeton of Harvard and Jeffrey O'Connell of the University of Illinois, proposed scrapping the current system of negligence suits in favor of a "no-fault" arrangement.

UNDER no-fault, motorists are compensated by their own insurance companies for accidental losses no matter who was at fault. Versions of the plan are in effect in Massachusetts and Puerto Rico. A no-fault law that would have taken effect in Illinois Jan. 1 was blocked by Chicago Judge Daniel Corvelli, who held it to be unconstitutional.

Supporters say no-fault reduces insurance costs by cutting down on lawyers' fees and insurance adjusting costs. The leading force is the American Trial Lawyers Association.

The Nixon Administration, basing its position on a Department of Transportation study, backs a nationwide no-fault approach but wants the states to pass uniform laws. Bills that would set up federal standards for a nationwide no-fault system are pending in Congress.

The ABA committee's recommendations would not do away with the current system entirely. An accident victim could pass up the payment and file a suit against the driver he considers at fault. If his losses are above $2,000 he could sue for the additional amount.

MOREOVER, the committee proposed retaining damage suits for what is known as "pain and suffering." However, the victim could not collect more than the amount of his medical expenses unless they exceeded $500 or the injury resulted in death, serious disability or disfigurement. The Massachusetts law requires insurers to pay injury claims of less than $2,000 without regard to fault. It also prohibits suits for "pain and suffering" unless medical expenses exceed $500.

Another recommendation of the ABA committee was that all states adopt a system of comparative negligence. This allows a victim to recover damages as long as his negligence is not as great as that of the other party.

MOST STATES operate under the contributory negligence system. A victim cannot collect damages if his own negligence contributed to the accident.

The committee also recommended that all states require drivers to be insured and that the minimum amounts be raised to $15,000 for bodily injury to one person, $30,000 for all bodily injury in one accident, and $5,000 for property damage. Uninsured motorist coverage also would be required at the $15,000 and $30,000 minimums.

Members of the committee with Judge Reardon were Richard W. Gallher, Washington, D.C.; James D. Ghiardi, Milwaukee; Raymond H. Kiern, New Orleans; Edward W. Kuhn, Memphis, Tenn.; Raoul D. Magana, Los Angeles; and J. Ronald Regnier, Hartford, Conn.

Minister convicted

MODESTO (UPI) — The Rev. Kirby Hensley, mail-order minister convicted of illegally marrying two juveniles, was ordered Friday to pay a fine of $375.

Labor leader endorses no-fault insurance

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — National legislation for no-fault auto insurance was endorsed Friday by a California labor leader in an appearance before the Democratic Party Commission on Platform and Policy.

"National legislation establishing a no-fault auto insurance program can give this nation's 108 million motorists better protection at less cost," John Henning, secretary-treasurer of the California Labor Federation, AFL-CIO, testified at the last of a dozen hearings across the state.

A no-fault system in Massachusetts is expected to drop auto insurance costs by 20 per cent, Henning added.

Henning also called for establishment of a national health insurance plan and urged Democrats to oppose any proposals for a "value-added" tax.

"This is nothing more than a deceptive name for a national sales tax scheme . . . to permit the manufacturer, the wholesaler and the retailer to pass the full amount of their tax along to the already over-burdened consumer," Henning said.

State Democratic Chairman Charles Manatt opened the hearing by declaring President Nixon "can't possibly win the presidency in 1972" without California and its 43 electoral votes.
